EPOCH '76 EAST PEORIA COMMUNITY HIGH SCHOOL

LOOKING IN. With the coming of the early morning sun, students bring the stir of life through the halls and down the stairs to begin a new day.

LETTING IT ALL OUT. In the frosty fall weather, Jill Miller pauses during a game of tennis to prove she's a real sports nut.

GETTING TOGETHER. As the day rolls on friends break away for lunch and get a taste of what it's all about.

AND SO IT GOES. Friends review the school day, but also anticipate the coming of many more.

INSIDE THE EPOCH

IT TAKES ALL KINDS. Just about everybody has a variety of friends, yet they all live their lives their own way.

NOT ABOUT TO GIVE IN. Many of our athletes learn to overcome the obstacles of different sports by reaching for their highest goals.

GROWING BIGGER. The amount of participation each individual puts into their own organization increases with the satisfaction they get out of their activity.

NO STRINGS ATTACHED. Willing to investigate the unknown, many students teach themselves that learning is a free process.

THE BEGINNING OF SOMETHING NEW

Wherever you look there is constantly the beginning of something new. Preparation and making the most of your efforts seems to be an important ingredient in building a solid foundation for future progress. For many people, a new beginning is a chance to make decisions and be aware of all the possibilities offered with a fresh start. From the beginning, dreams become reality, ideas are constantly being put into motion, but most of all just getting started is a step in the right direction.

STARTING POINT. Many students find that this early in the morning just getting off the bus is a step in the right direction.

TAKING A BREATHER. After school people begin to go their own way in order to breakaway from the monotony of the six hour day.

GIVE IT A CHANCE. It didn't start out to be a "masterpiece", but Crystal Griffith finds that for imagination to grow it has to start somewhere.

THE DAY BELONGS TO YOU. In the light of the rising sun everyone, including a horse, may share the freedom that starts with the quiet of the morning.

SPIRIT HAS TO START SOMEWHERE. Before the opening kick-off, Bunny Randall gives all she can to get the show on the road.

EVERY MOMENT COUNTS. From the moment they start warming up until they make the winning pin, these wrestlers are constantly preparing themselves for the next move.

St. Patrick's spires symbolized new hope to European immigrants searching for a better way of life in America. Even though there are no spires reaching to heaven, St. Monica's represents the beauty of modern day architecture.

A Look at the New

By charting the progression of our country through two hundred years, we pay tribute to the growth and development that provides a constant change for many Americans. The modernized churches are a good example of the more conservative designed buildings of today, rather than the elaborately styled architecture of days gone by. Back when recreational activities were limited, families would gather together and participate in their favorite pastimes. Yet today's athletic events and recreational activities are so numerous and varying that almost everyone may do their own thing with fun and with flair. A most noticeable change that has been evolving through the years, is that of women's participation in the field of athletics. The idea of the female being the weaker of the sexes is constantly getting dimmer.

The fashions of the two hundred years have also advanced quite far to the up-to-date fads of today's generation. Jeans and bib overalls have replaced knickers and knee high stockings; no longer do people wear silver buckled shoes but the high-stepping platform footwear dominates today's feet; and only on special occasions are the long full length gowns that were common in those days, worn by today's modern woman.

In the area of transportation, Americans have observed the birth of many new ideas and watched how these ideas have benefited their way of life. In the beginning the horse was the main mode of transportation, but soon there were stage coaches and covered wagons carrying men, women and children into new and various frontiers. Next tracks were laid and roads were paved to make way for the "Ironhorse" and "horseless carriage." Then came the airplane and man is now exploring the frontier of outer space.

Billiards was a popular and respectable diversion for the whole family. Scott Heppe and friends find that playing air hockey is a great way to spend an evening. Actually, getting together and having fun is still the main idea behind all recreational activities which have advanced only for the better.

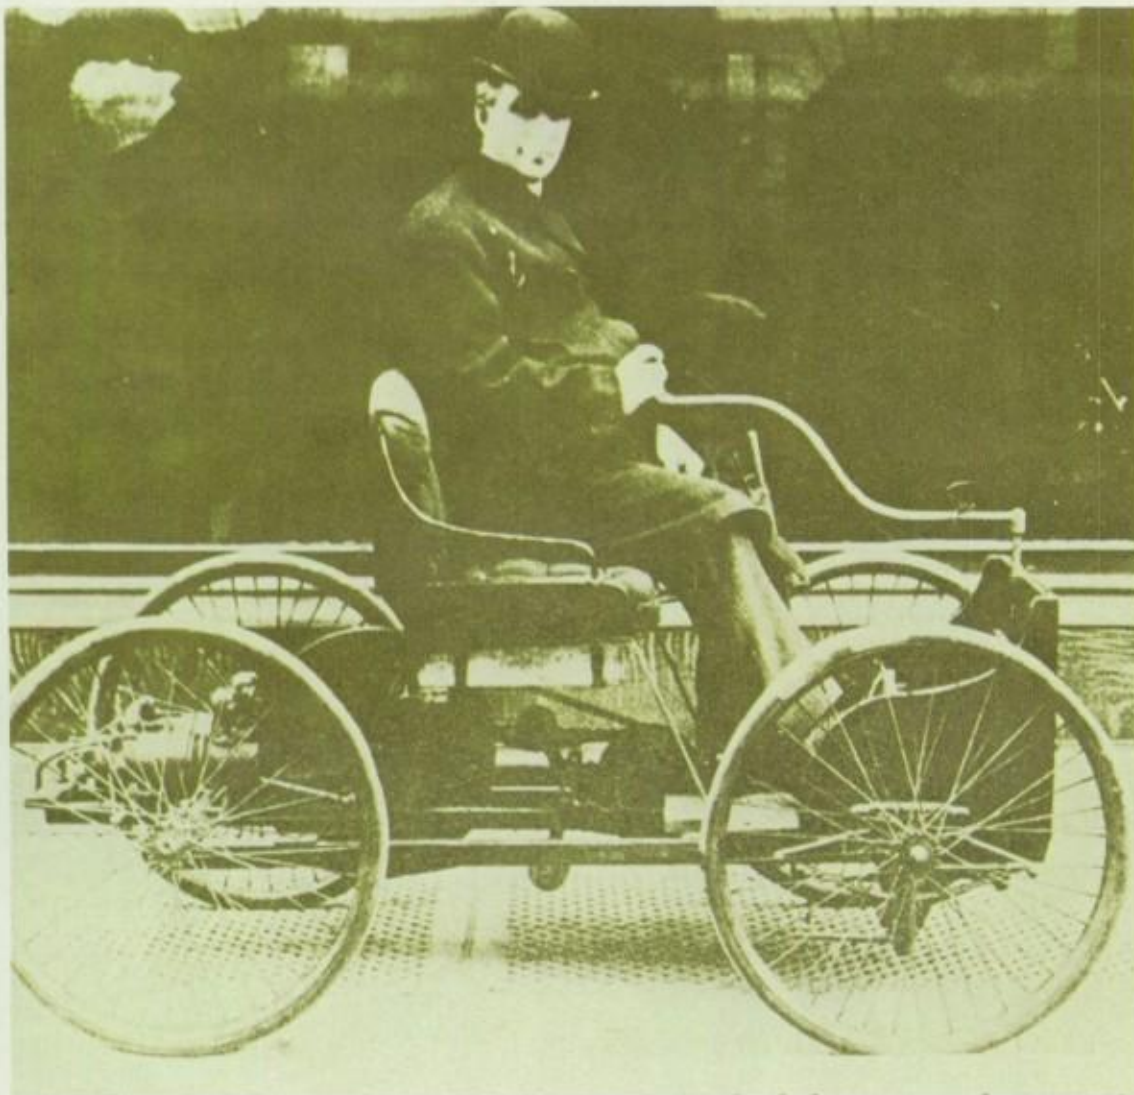

American ladies donned the high waisted gowns of the Directoire and Napoleonic periods, and gentlemen began to accept high hats of silk and long trousers. What a change! Jan Cannon and Kelli Roach display the frequently seen style; the comfortable and now popular below the knee dress.

With an Eye Toward the Old

Henry Ford's first car had a two cylinder gasoline engine, developing four horsepower and went forward but not backwards. The world has progressed considerably when it comes to transportation! Running along these lines the MG B has a four cylinder engine with a four speed manual transmission. It's a car anyone "wouldn't mind having".

CHARTING THE YEAR

DON'T CROWD THE BUS. Along with the hustle, hurry and homework that accompanies the return of school, one also finds it's good to get back into the swing of things amongst the welcoming of good friends.

August 27th brought with it more than just the slamming and jamming of locker doors, but also the beginning of the action-packed months ahead. Soon everybody became acquainted with the razzle-dazzle that goes hand-in-hand with the events of the first semester. The first stop on the calendar of events highlighted the fall season. This well-planned Homecoming week ended with the student body urging the Red Raider Machine onto victory.

Ready for the unexpected, people found themselves beating their brains out at practice, selling an unusual variety of items (like recycled trash) and working on into the wee hours of the night to finish yesterday's assignment. A planned program, with the end of one event leading into another, describes the first semester which never had a dull moment.

SIGN OF THE TIMES. Many times during the football season friends would gather in the stands and celebrate the approaching weekend.

FASTEN YOUR SEATBELTS AND PREPARE FOR TAKE-OFF. Before the lift-off of the Homecoming half-time show, drum major John Otey issues last minute instructions to be sure of a smooth riding show.

ACTION PACKED. As the team takes to the field and the cheerleaders start the spirit rolling, another Friday night game makes the scene.

ON THE WARPATH. With the beginning of the basketball season came the outbreak of the mighty Raider machine, which was led by mascot Linda Johnson.

EAT, DRINK AND BE MERRY. To celebrate the approach of Christmas and the traditions of "Merrie Olde England," a Lord of nobility joins other members of the court in song and feast.

The Good Times Made Better

From the first day you enter E.P.C.H.S., your own personal student life begins. Everyone's life is different, yet we all have one trait in common. We are continuously growing and progressing with every little detail or happening we come in contact with. Whether it be traditional events like Homecoming, the play, or graduation; or maybe the more informal activities such as dances, eating lunch, or co-ed P.E. These are all individual events that highlight your own personal student life.

Except for those who were recovering from the first semester and those who were preparing for the "second time around," the semester dance provided a night of both fast dance and good music.

Representing the junior class, Jill Phillips accepts the trophy for their winning Homecoming float, marking one of the achievements of her class.

Fitting some time for casual relaxation into their rehearsal schedule, the kids in orchestra planned a surprise birthday-Christmas party for their conductor, Mr. Dowling.

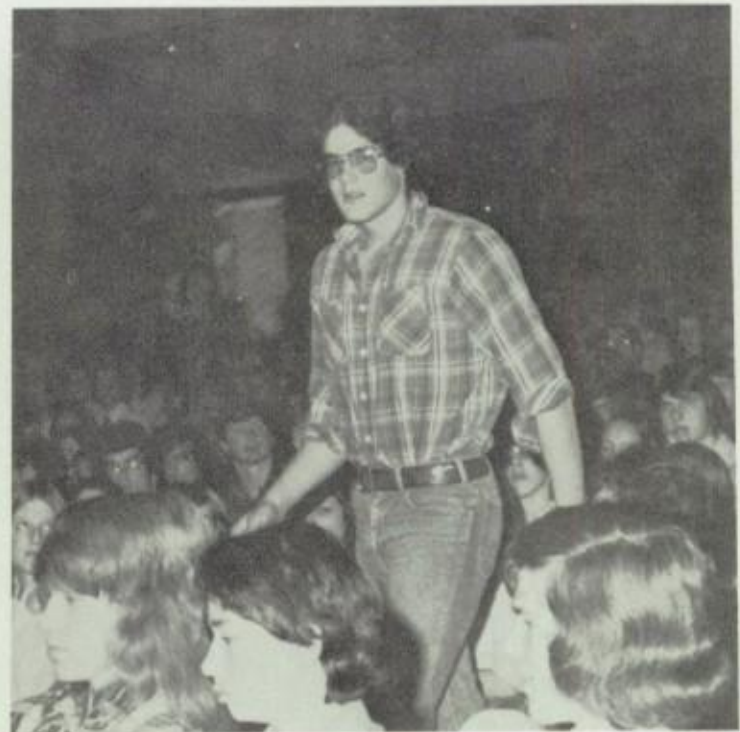

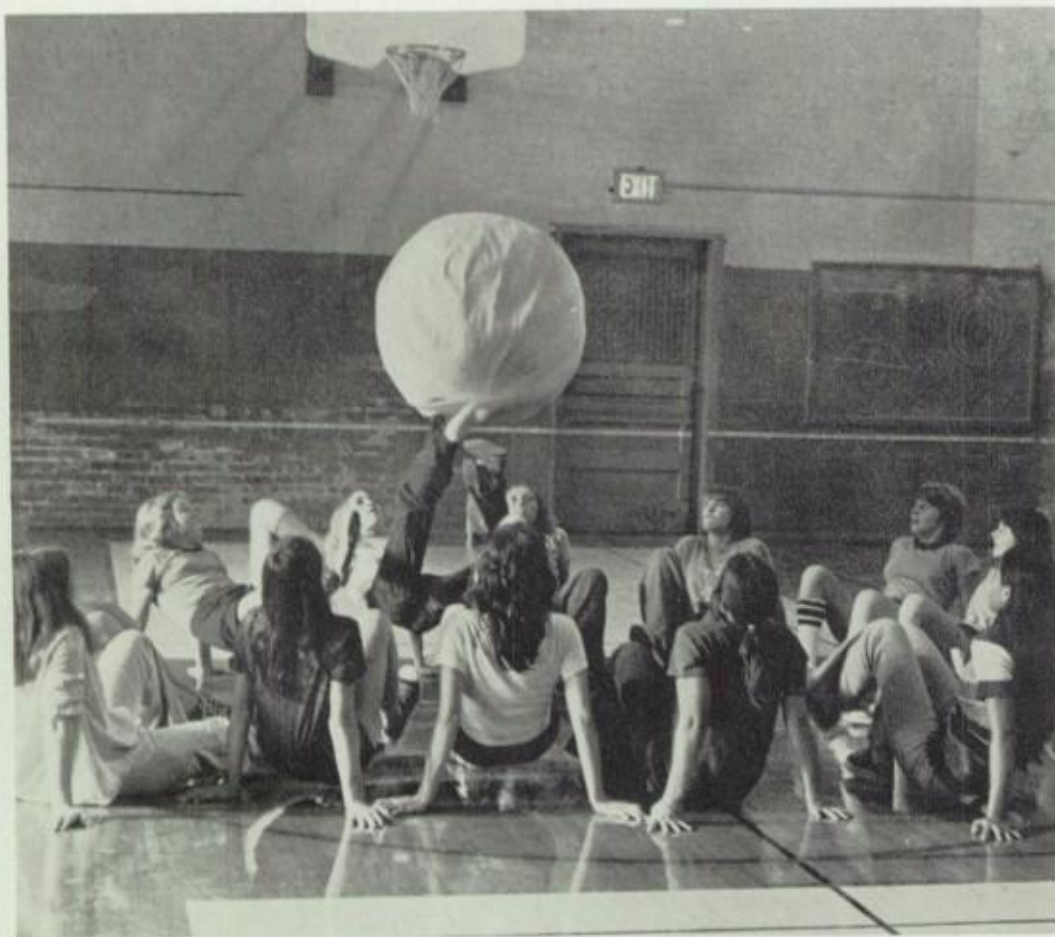

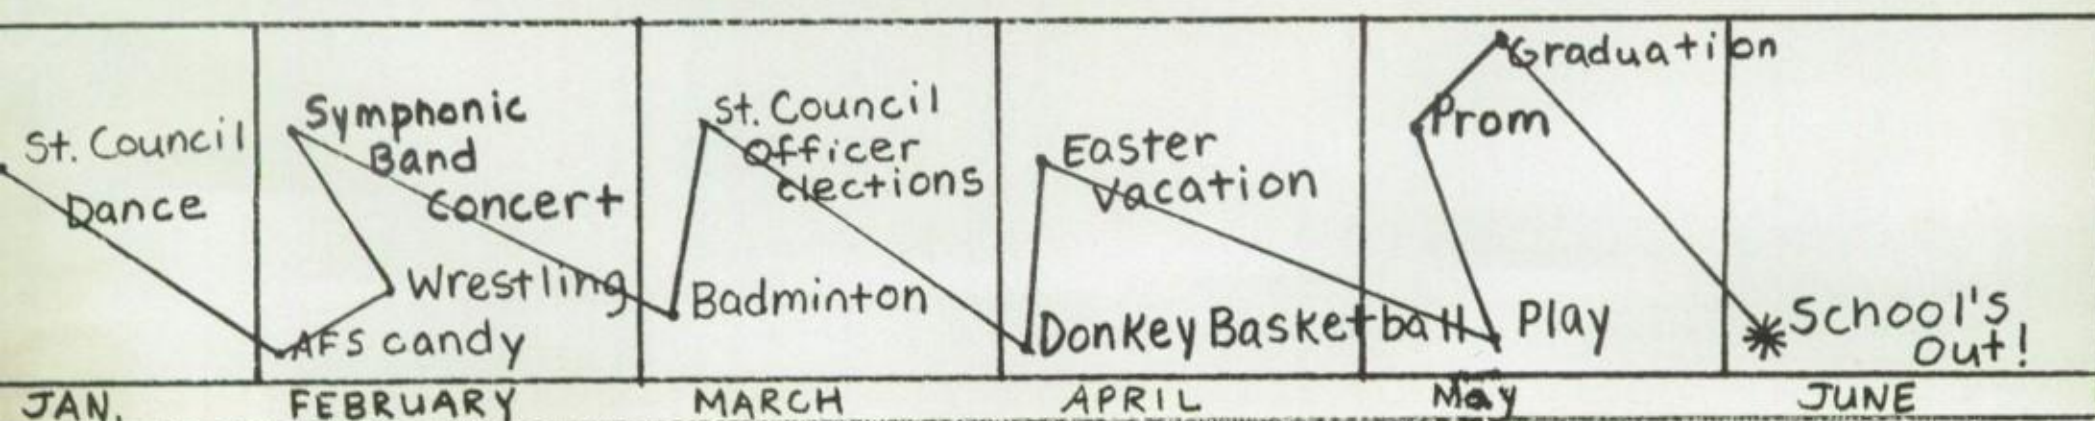

A popular event always draws a big crowd and elections are no exception; as voting and participating in student government can be one of the highlights of the year.

What better way is there to pick up some first-hand knowledge of the French cuisine than at a taste-supper? While studying a unit on French cooking, these students planned a supper and gathered in Madame Stoke's basement.

At the GAA coke party, freshmen girls get their kicks from a friendly game of cageball, only one of the activities planned for the get-together.

As the crowd watches, Jim Johnson, one of the fourteen boys recognized by the National Honor Society, heads toward the stage during this annual scheduled assembly.

The Lazy Days of Summer

Summer is . . . a three month probation (but then there's summer school!) . . . camping outdoors (among swarms of mosquitoes!) . . . lots of outdoor activities (like mowing the lawn!) . . . cooling off with a swim water-logged (with twenty gallons of chlorine!) . . . moonlight walks (couldn't you have been blessed with a little more co-ordination?) . . . parties (three months long!) . . . drive-in movies (what was the movie about?) . . . taking off winter's fat (underneath sixteen inches of Ben Gay!) . . . prospect of school looming ahead (oh well!)

Hanging around, Tami Slocum and Mona George wait for a ride after Raiderette practice this summer.

Expressing her enjoyment of motorcycles, Laurie Payne watches the TT races during the month of July.

In the heat of a summer night, two Student Council members enjoy rowing across the pond at Pekin Park earlier this summer.

Bringing back last year's memories, Brenda Hoerdemann and Beth Meads look at the yearbook while sitting outside on the lawn.

The Last of the Good Ole' Days

Anyone who bought last year's EPoCH could be found standing around in the commons autographing yearbooks at the EPoCH party.

"The dog ate it . . ."
 "I dropped it in the fishbowl . . ."
 "I laid it on my dresser last night, maybe the cockroaches got it . . ."
 "I got mugged and they ripped it off . . ."

If you've heard one excuse, you've heard them all. These are just some of the reasons that many students came up with for not having their receipts. Needless to say, the staff was quite amused, but no one received a yearbook without having that "precious" little slip of paper. After a long wait in line, students who received their yearbooks hurried to collect graffiti written by many of their friends . . . with no space left unsigned, students leafed impatiently through the books, searching the pages for their mug shots.

The EPoCH staff hands out last year's best seller to the people who made it that way.

Really bent on studying the yearbook, Bill Hart and Beth York thumb through the EPoCH.

THE RISE OF FALL

After the numerous activities of summer, students adjust to a slower pace with the coming of fall. Indian summer brings spurts of energy as seen in homecoming activities, football games and hayrack rides. Falling leaves add the last bit of color to the landscape before winter's hibernation.

Underneath autumn leaves, students, while waiting for their buses, enjoy the beautiful days of Indian summer.

After the summer months of vacancy, the school grounds were once again occupied by the crowds of students who flocked to the high school.

Campfires in the forest are a great way to spend a fall afternoon, as shown by these girls in camp-craft.

At one of the many hayrack rides this fall, Randy Cheek grabs a bite to eat.

A New Beginning

Ask any frosh what he remembers most about his first day of school, and he will probably say "The Freshmen Mixer." After an assembly and fifteen minute classes that morning, freshmen returned that night to hear the music and really "get down." Not just new faces, freshmen who did the "bump" were a sign of new ideas that influenced student life throughout the year.

Keeping with the beat, Lisa Cothrell gets down to music at the Freshmen Mixer.

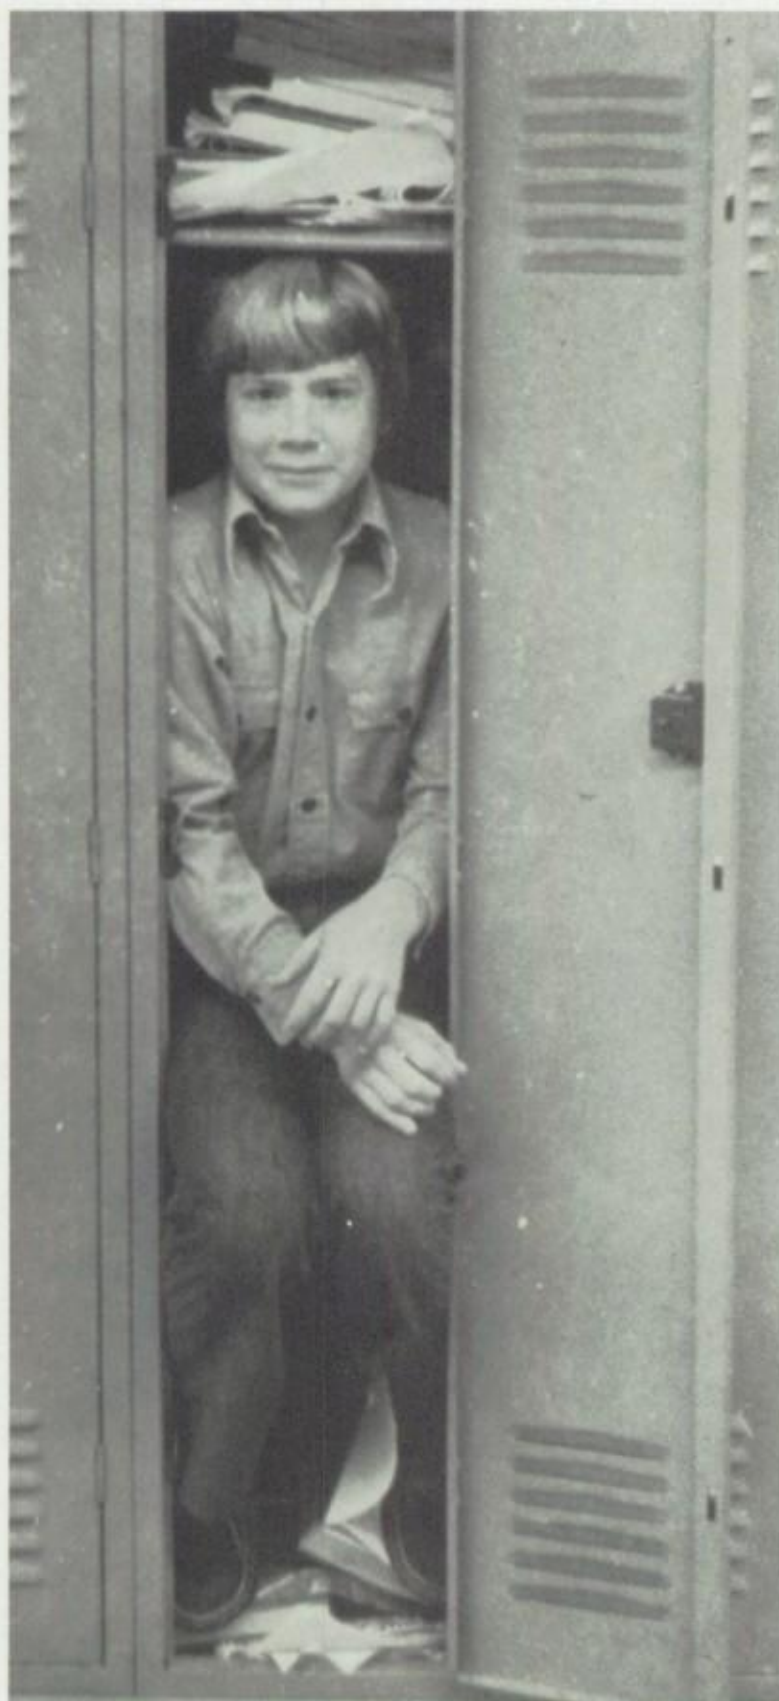

To help the freshmen get acquainted with high school life, the band provided easy entertainment to set the relaxed mood.

Coming together, freshmen have a gay old time at the dance.

LOCKERS

Really getting into things, Danny Friend squeezes through.

A locker makes a great hangout.

Scott Behrends shows that lockers aren't just a place to store books.

When Brett Underwood opens his locker, the good times roll.

This student's locker which displays a peculiar fascination for one of Peoria's well-known taverns could easily be used as an advertisement.

WE GOT A SHOW THAT CAN'T BE BEAT

IN THE MOVIE BUSINESS
THEY SURE DON'T MAKE
ACTION LIKE THIS ANYMORE.

Student Council helped to make this year's Homecoming more exciting than before by sponsoring such activities as the Volkswagen Push, an Abbott and Costello movie and "Spirit Walls" for all four classes. Students got a chance to display their acting talents as "Cowboys and Indians Day" and "Celebrity Day" carried out the theme "Now Playing." The student body saw another kind of acting talent at the Gymnastics Assembly on Thursday, October 9th and at the Variety Show when the Homecoming Royalty provided the entertainment when names were announced.

Breaking through the crowd,
Sue Tofanelli fights for a hard earned victory for the Junior class.

Matching their own strength,
the Junior tug-of-war team pulls their hardest to finish in first place.

Debbie Tittle and Bill Solomon hold the spotlight of attention at the start of the royalty dance.

Flying high, Bill Solomon received one of the many passes which helped to win the Homecoming game.

Operating on full power, the cheerleaders put out all the spirit they have to help boost a Raider victory.

A symbol of the attack East Peoria made on Pekin, the Industrial Arts/Home Ec Club float received second place in the Homecoming Parade.

As the band played on, couples stepped out onto the floor.

Now Playing:

Highlights of the Parade, Game and Dance

The 1st place junior class float starring King Kong, advises the Chinks not to monkey around with the Raiders.

"Now playing on the scenes of the E.P.C.H.S. campus for Homecoming Week 1975. Here's the line-up . . ."

Hidden to the majority of students and faculty were all of the various activities which fit together to make a spirited and successful homecoming. When the parade came to town on Saturday, October 11, the memories of these past events were put aside as spirit peaked toward the Homecoming football game against the Pekin Chinks. A bright day of Indian Summer teamed with the victorious game paved the way for the grand finale, "That's Entertainment". The band, "Flex", ended with a fantastic performance to bring the curtain down slowly on Homecoming '75.

Caught up in the Golden Spell of reigning as Homecoming royalty, the king, queen, and their court are celebrities for the night.

Dreaming of a White Christmas

Blinded by the raging snowstorm, these students fight it out.

Hearts yielded to the spirit of the Christmas season as rooms were cheerfully decorated and students participated in the Red Stocking drive. Everyone celebrated in special ways; Lockers were decorated, Student Council members trimmed the tree by the auditorium foyer, and traditional Madrigal dinners were presented. Making up for our lack of Christmas snow, we received a heavy snowfall the day before Thanksgiving vacation which obliterated the entire Midwest with over seven inches. The winter wonderland we enjoyed was lacking in snow but was created by ice that covered not only landscape but also buildings. At school, students were not to be outdone in decorating; the EPOCH, Student Council, and Art rooms had painted holiday scenes, a Home Ec. room door resembled a giant present, and administration offices were adorned accordingly. The winter sports of basketball, volleyball, and wrestling drew the spectators that observed football, cross-country, and tennis in the fall.

The extreme bitterness of cold drives students into the school.

The merriment of the Christmas season and the warmth of a cozy fire temporarily put the spine tingling chill of winter out of the minds of these German Club members

Gina Carroll, Student Council President, adds the traditional bit of spice, putting the finishing touches on the tree.

Doing it the American way, Kike celebrates Christmas with the Heppe family as he opens one of his presents while Lori waits to see what it is.

Rose Horsely, Dianne Moussalli and Colleen Harris prove that you're never too old to get your wish from Santa Claus.

It's almost like homecoming the second time around . . . almost. There were special days in observance of Homelycoming during the week. The first was hidden number's day, when student council members hid Indian heads throughout the school which could be redeemed for a prize at the dance. Next came inside-out backwards day, followed by Greaser day. Students came up with some pretty strange outfits on both of these days! For the last day of the week different colored carnations were bought in the cafeteria foyer. "Olympics" were held after school for the daring teams formed from each class. A huge crowd gathered to watch and cheer their class members on, after competing in difficult, fun and unusual events. The Senior class came out on top. To complete the week's activities, "Addison Grace" performed at the dance along with the crowning of the lovely legs royalty.

They've Got Legs

Students enjoy listening and dancing to the music of "Addison Grace."

Everyone had a great time at the Homelycoming dance.

The highpoint of Homelycoming week was the choosing of the lovely legs winners.

Donkey Basketball

—a Roaring Success

Teachers take a break during half-time to rest their aching muscles.

Mr. Hendryx "takes it easy" on the back seat of his donkey.

Have you ever heard of a super dooper pooper scooper? If you were in the vicinity of East Peoria High on the evening of April 2, you would know what this is.

This year's game was wilder and funnier than ever as the donkeys were just as stubborn. Their daring riders were bucked off or fell off in numerous ways and styles, but were soon riding again. The entertainment was carried on through halftime with an unusual, baffling "brainy dog" act.

The senior lettermen (and women) defeated the faculty with a score of 36-22. The money collected from this game was divided among charities.

With a llama unwilling to move, Mr. Saluto gets nowhere.

Spring Fever Hits Again

Students enjoy walking in the cool spring air and finally shedding their heavy winter coats.

Spring . . . baseball, track, tennis season . . . dusting off the golf clubs . . . Homelycoming . . . Donkey Basketball . . . Senior Hop and prom . . . drip . . . budding trees and budding love . . . budding of ideas . . . brain cleaning time . . . turn off the furnace . . . shorts and tank tops (shiver) wait a month or so . . . opening of the Dairy Queen . . . eight weeks till the end of school . . . seeding muddy spots in the lawn . . . along with sprays of blooms . . . arrival of new babies . . . walk for mankind, OOhh the blisters . . . sunburned noses . . . aching, out-of-shape muscles . . . drip . . . just splashes of spring in the rain looking through a watery iridescent mirror at the season.

There's nothing like the warm sun in your face to help remind you that spring is here to stay.

After winter's severe cold, it's great to be riding around outside again.

"See How They Run"—A Smash Hit

This year's farce of the season "See How They Run" by Samuel French was indeed a great success. After long, hot grueling practices after school, on Saturdays and over Easter vacation the payoff of satisfaction for each member of the cast proved that all the work was indeed well worth the effort. It was worth memorizing lines, getting covered with grease paint, missing dinner, turning in homework late, and staying up till all hours of the night. At times, it was doubtful whether the production would ever come through with members forgetting lines, missing cues, and laughing hysterically as the director looked on, tearing her hair out, and muttering obscenities under her breath. Finally the line came, cues were taken and nobody laughed (when they weren't supposed to.)

Without any foresight of what's coming up, Penelope Toop receives a phone call from her uncle, the bishop, who makes an unexpected visit that night.

The struggle between Penelope and her old friend Clive, ends act II with Penelope accidentally knocking out the village busy-body, Miss Skillion.

Penelope and Clive return home finding the house in an uproar and people popping out of the closet.

Couples dancing to Bill Hardesty and the Holiday Brass, rainbow decor, and crowning of the 1976 royalty were all a part of the Junior-Senior prom at the Bradley Student Center Ballroom this year. Juniors, with the largest sum of money in the treasury of any class before them, went all out to make this a night to remember. The theme, "Colour My World," using all the colors of the rainbow, gave decorators a chance to use their ingenuity to the best of their abilities. Everyone would attest to their success as the ballroom looked gorgeous. When the evening came to an end couples left to attend private gatherings of their friends to continue the celebration of this special occasion.

The Night That Coloured the World

Amid stars and streamers, these young people relax in the dreamy atmosphere of the prom.

With a look of surprise, Lori Fleming and Gary Witt pose for another Royalty picture as couples dance to the theme song "Colour My World."

The King and Queen, as well as the Royalty nominees, get into the picture, giving us a look at the 1976 Prom court of Royalty.

Beneath the rainbow of colors, the couples danced to the soft entertainment of Bill Hardesty Holiday Brass.

As the center of attention, Queen, Lori Fleming, and the King, Gary Witt, flash their friendly smiles before they begin the Royalty dance.

Doing some fast movin' and high-steppin', seniors swing into action as guests of the junior class.

The Class of '76 Speaks Out

Graduation—the event of the year for which seniors yearn finally comes. The colors were chosen in commemoration of the nation's Bicentennial as the graduates looked distinguished in the rare attire of white and blue gowns with red, white, and blue tassels. They were surrounded by an aura of excitement at the completion of four long years of study and pleasure. The night of June 1, 1976 was swiftly over, ending a segment of their lives as they exited into the darkness and the uncertainty of their future.

Seniors stand for their last pledge with their classmates.

Honor Speaker Jean Sandall talks of what seniors have achieved during the past four years.

Memories of the Past Hopes for the Future

As the crowd of parents, relatives, and friends watch, the 395 graduates of the Bicentennial year listen to a talk given by Superintendent, Russell J. Moore.

The Symphonic band's last performance of the year included the playing of the Processional and the Recessional for the 1976 Commencement exercises.

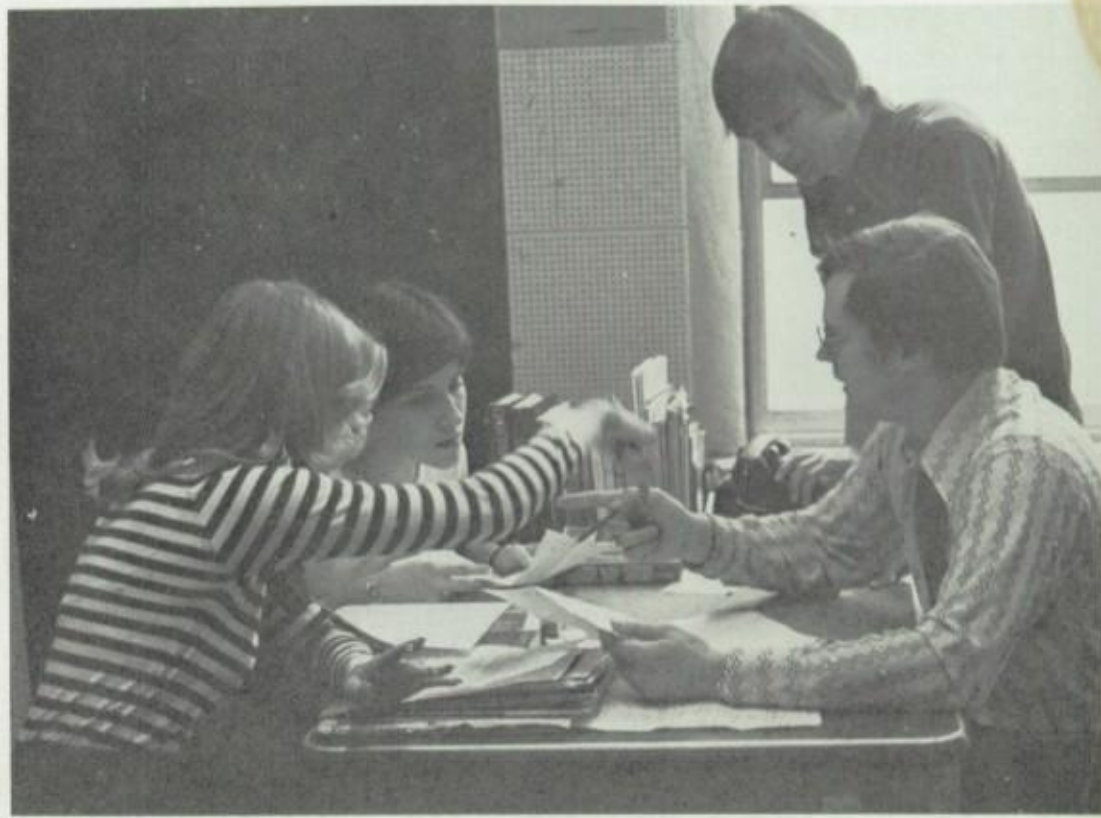

Susan Vroman presented the senior gift, a new flag, to Mr. Moore.

Making last adjustments, the seniors line up for the final event of their high school years.

If You Got the Time

As we take a closer look, we realize that organizations play an important part in our lives as well as the lives of others. When clubs first began forming in the fall, they each started planning a schedule of activities for their organization to follow in the school year ahead. One by one the activities passed by on the calendar of events. Some were successes and yet others were failures. But each of the well planned activities served the purpose of benefitting us and giving us a chance to do our own thing.

When it comes to developing a certain topic, participants in speech club mingle different ideas, searching for improvement.

Silhouetted against stage curtains, the cheerleaders practice a new mount to perform during the next basketball game.

The speech tournament held here was one activity in which the clubs worked together. These members of the House helped by tabulating the tournament scores.

Juliana Stuber and Denise Grotz are only two of the pep club members who paint the signs and hoops to support the different athletic teams.

At German club's fall picnic, one of their scheduled events of the year, members get acquainted and relax after a lively game of soccer.

Always looking for a new and different way, organizations constantly make changes for the better. Jackie Davis, Ralph Norton, Sue Vroman and Rick Wanner demonstrate how band uniforms have changed through the years.

Student Council

"Leaders of the Pack", Pat Waldon, Treas.; Jim White, Vice-Pres.; Gina Carrol, Pres.; and Elaine Trumble, Sec., worked hard conducting meetings and kept things going.

Looking forward to more involvement and better communications between the student body and administration, Student Council stressed student rights and responsibilities this year. After school meetings were open to the student body, the Council worked towards keeping good relationships open with the administration in such things as a better method for semester exams.

New committees were formed to cover every facet of dealing with the community and the school. Social Committee was in charge of Homecoming and Homelycoming activities, assemblies, Donkey Basketball, and the Freshmen Mixer and other dances. Community Relations handled all charity work like the Canned Food Drive and the St. Jude

March, and set up a schedule for visiting Zeller Zone Center. Elections and Registration supervised student voting and registration. Publicity Committee did all the artwork needed for publicity of various events.

Student Advisory was formed in order that a representative from each club or organization could attend monthly meetings for better relations.

Student Rights and Responsibilities committee strove for a good system of communications at school and sent Council members to attend School Board and City Council meetings.

Student Council has a right to be proud of their accomplishments not only in their own school but throughout the Central Illinois area.

Senior member Amy Kolb, Chairman of Social Committee, is the one to be thanked for Donkey basketball, Homecoming, Homelycoming, and other dances. Without her hard work and time these activities wouldn't be possible.

Striving for a Better Year

Putting up the picture backdrop is just one of the many duties of the Student Council members at Homecoming time. In preparation for the dance, Student Council also prepares the refreshments, sets up tables, makes and puts up the Royalty backdrop, and decorates the gym.

Student Council advisor Mr. Saluto shows that he is young at heart by dancing with Sophomore member Linda Carlson at the Freshmen Mixer.

Student Council members help Reverend Betterman load canned foods which are collected from homerooms annually during the Canned Food Drive. Working with the East Peoria Youth and Family Council, Student Council also delivers food baskets to the needy people of the E.P.C.H.S. area at Christmas time.

A REASON TO SMILE

Kike learns how to do "the bump" from Marilyn Wagner at the Freshman Mixer.

A photographer snaps a picture just in time to catch that Spanish smile.

During the Homecoming Parade, Kike flashes a proud smile at the crowd as he passes by.

At the Lakeview YMCA fashion show, Kike talks with another foreign exchange student.

This year at E.P.C.H.S. was a memorable year for the foreign exchange student, Enrique Blanco.

While in America, "Kike" lived with his A.F.S. "brother" Scott ('76) and "sister" Lori ('78) Heppie. Being greeted by so many friendly smiles as he walked the halls made Kike feel like "one of the gang." The social life of American teenagers is quite different to Kike as it often centers around high school activities. Spanish schools are directed toward study.

Kike loves music and especially enjoyed the Caterpillar Chorus production of "Oklahoma!" Kike considered it rewarding to serve on Student Council and take part in our first A.F.S. Club. After graduation, Kike plans to return to Spain where he will study economics at the University of Santiago.

Looking Into House of Representatives

This year was finally an active one for the House of Representatives. The club consists of students who shared an interest in school affairs. The members played an important part in improving the school communications between the student body and Student Council and the students and teachers. The House worked along with Student Council in planning school activities such as the Freshman Orientation and Mixer, the Homecoming Parade, Red Stocking Drive, Walk for Mankind and other fund-raising projects.

The House of Representatives offered this hot little item as a prize, to serve as an incentive for their money-making campaign.

Offering constructive suggestions to the group of interested members, Mr. Sanders discusses upcoming events for the newly constructed House.

With the sale of AFS candy, vice-president Teresa Nance reports to members of the House on the purpose of the fund-raising project.

In an attempt to perfect their timing, Raiderettes go through the routine "just one more time."

As the crowd watches from the bleachers, Mona George adds sparkle to the halftime show.

Raiderettes: Kickin' n' a Grinnin'

These can all be used to describe our greatly improved maroon and gold squad which provides entertainment and promotes spirit during halftime at the football and basketball games.

Wrestling Cheerleaders Make Winning Easier

Top to bottom: Julie Wildenradt, Gail Dubás, Lori Fleming, Carol Runyon, Debbie Morris, Sandy Melko.

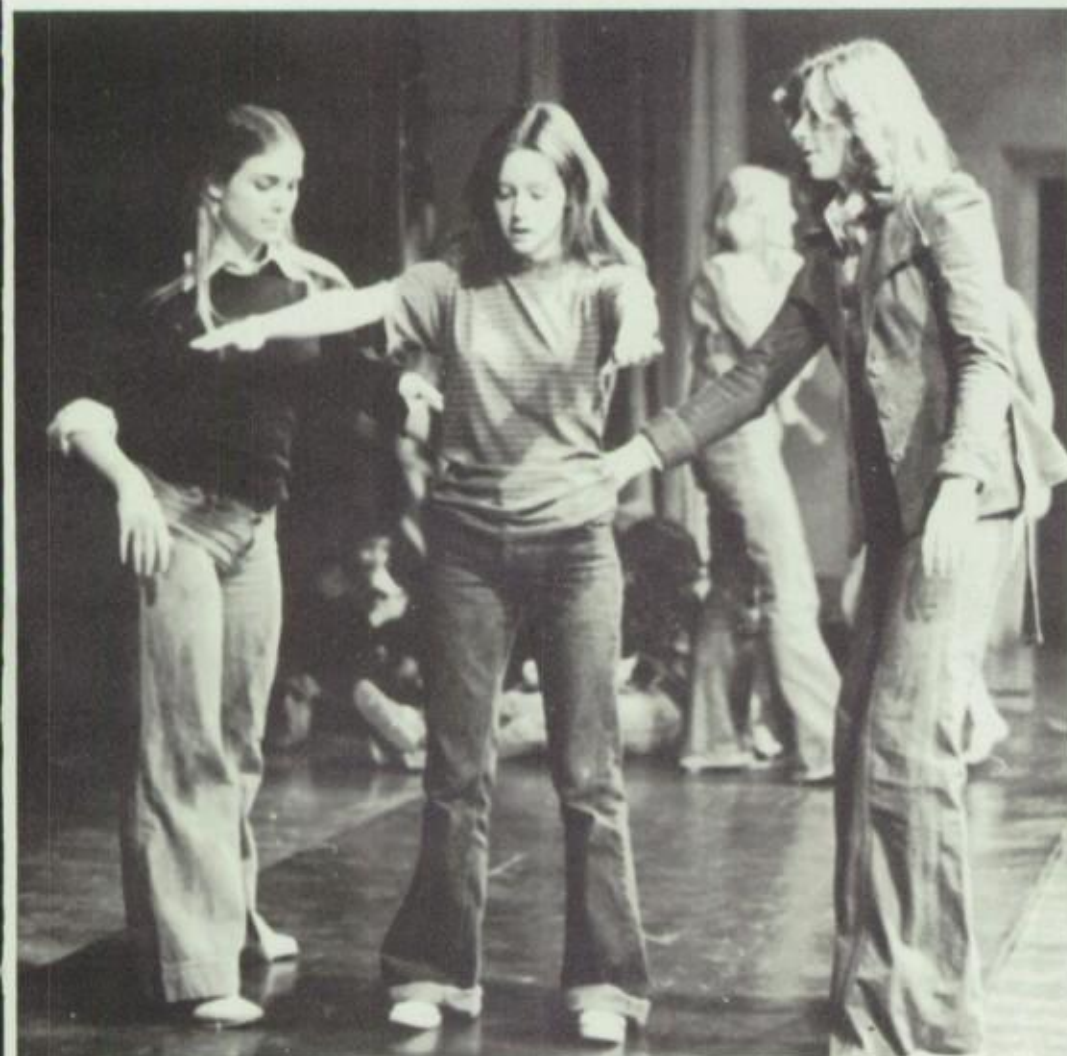

THIS . . . IS . . . RAIDER . . . COUNTRY! THIS . . . IS . . . RAIDER . . . COUNTRY!

Often left out of the limelight, the equally enthusiastic wrestling and cross country cheerleaders don't always receive the recognition they deserve for their part in promoting school spirit. This year Mrs. Stone coached not only the wrestling, but Junior Varsity and Varsity squads as well.

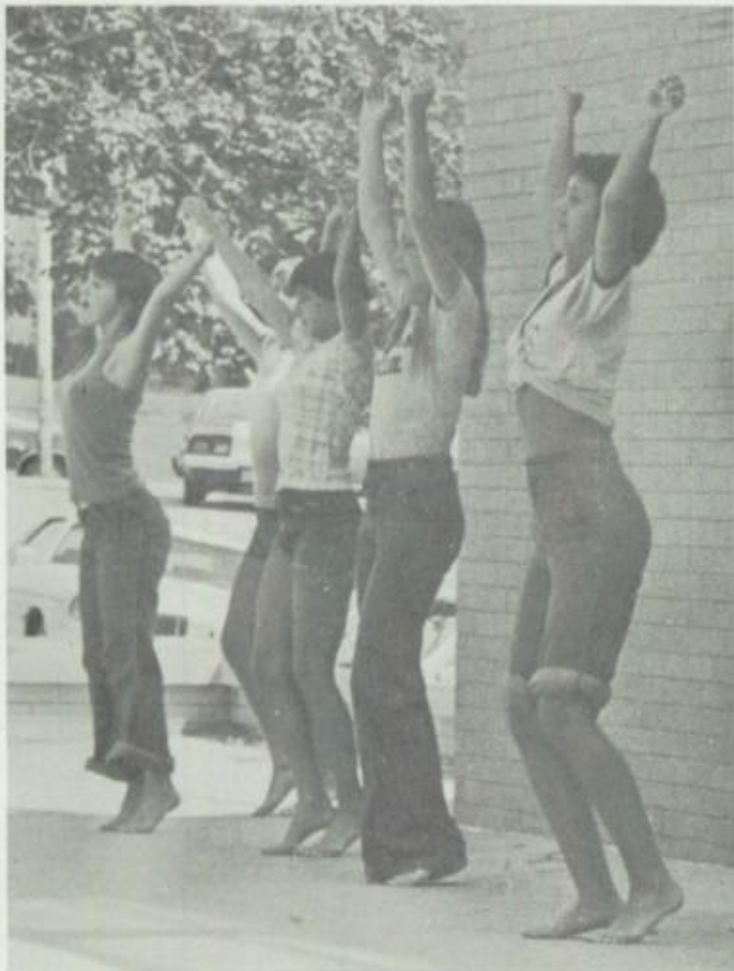

Julie Wildenradt finds that practicing is an important part of cheerleading. During this time mounts are just one way to add variety to Wrestling squad's cheers.

With a look of determination, Sandy Melko practices her back flips with the help of JV Cheerleader Becky Early and Wrestling cheerleader Lori Fleming.

Reflecting on the year ahead, JV cheerleaders enjoy the limelight at the homecoming parade.

Practicing in the summer heat, JV cheerleaders prepare for a winning year.

Doin' Fine at Mid State Nine

New ideas from the summer cheerleading camp at Lake Geneva, Wisconsin were used as the varsity and junior varsity squads executed cheers and new acrobatic stunts with precision. These cheerleaders proved their outstanding talents when they were named "best squad" in the Mid-State Nine. The competition was based on basketball floor cheers and pom pom routines. Debbie Tittle was named to the Mid-State Nine honor squad, made up of all the girls from schools whom the judges thought outstanding. Performing in the spotlight before the games Linda Johnson, the school mascot, danced to the Raider beat.

A senior member of the varsity cheerleading squad, Linda Eads keeps the spirit alive at basketball games. The seniors on the squad led the EP team to be named MS9's best.

Flips, bounces, and synchronized movements performed with perfection require much practice; Becky Early and Brenna Rash work till they reach top form.

Before the homecoming victory, Bunny Randall, Brenna Rash and Maureen Chase relax till the call of duty requires them to yell, scream and flip for the football team.

Move Over Boys! Here We Come!

Just horsin' around, President Jean Callow, Vice-President Amy Kolb and Secretary Gayla Winter set up a mount during the Homecoming gymnastics assembly.

Lori Waldon doesn't always walk around with a piece of paper attached to her head. She's playing a game at a GAA meeting. It may say "don't talk to me" or "be nice to me" only Lori doesn't know it. She's supposed to guess it.

After school while they're earning points, DeDe Winkler and Jill Phillips get hung up on volleyball.

G.A.A. Sportswomen on the Go

Telling herself she's got to make a homer, Debi Churchill concentrates on the ball . . .

Hoping to get the timing right, she pulls back and . . .

What a hotdog! SHE MADE IT!

The Girls Athletic Association provides girls with the opportunity to participate in competitive athletics. By paying a due of seventy-five cents per year, girls can take part in a coke party with games, sponsor Mom and Dad nights, and invite the incoming eighth graders to a playday. Girls that are especially enthusiastic about GAA can run for board offices. These officers plan the numerous activities for all members. A yearly banquet is held with awards given to girls excelling in the chosen areas of participation. GAA came in a close second for the winning float in the parade.

Learning what GAA is all about, freshmen enjoy the coke party which is held every year for these new members.

Orchesis

During the Spring Concert, Kim Hulva begins her climb on the "Stairway to Heaven".

Did you see some strange sights this year; such as girls leaping, sliding, and doing "weird" movements across the floor? No they weren't going bananas. It was all just a part of practicing modern dance routines for the Orchesis Concert which was held March 19 and 20.

Composed of 55 members, the girls had a lot of fun this year at their Christmas party where gifts were exchanged. They found satisfaction in all the hard work put into practices held after school throughout the year. Plenty of work and planning went into presenting a successful concert, followed later in the year with a Spring Banquet.

Becky Gould raises her hands to the sky during her dance to "Band on the Run".

With the many different kinds of movements and gestures that are expected of Orchesis members, it is important that they exercise and practice at least two nights a week.

Leaping Through Another Year

Cheryl O'Brien, Monica Stolin, and Jay Avery perform to the song "Reno".

Awaiting instructions, Orchesis members get ready to practice their dances in preparation for the concert.

Freshmen members, Lisa Cothrell and Cathy Johnson, during a curtain change.

Exchanging ideas, Valerie Teige assists people editors, Monika Schmitt and Keith Williams.

Really on top of things, John McCutchen gets an aerial view of the Homecoming parade.

Catching passing students off guard isn't easy as photographer Rob Burton, well knows.

EPoCH Staff and Photographers Get It Together

Learning the tricks of the trade, Danita Moore watches as Gary Witt examines her work.

At the orientation meeting the assembled EPoCH staff got acquainted with their positions, but throughout the year they juggled those duties to keep up with the continual flow of deadlines they had to meet. The art editor might be found taking pictures, student life editor writing copy, the editor-in-chief learning darkroom techniques. By the end of the last deadline the pages of the yearbook find themselves mysteriously complete, forming EPoCH '76. Assisting the staff are the photographers. If anyone should happen to pass by E.P.C.H.S. during a school day they would probably stop and stare in amazement at an occasional person hanging from a tree, crawling under bleachers, or even clamboring on top of tables. Passing under an I-74 overpass an odd figure could be seen, apparently surveying the countryside. The photographers are always striving for a more ingenious and imaginative picture.

Gazing down at their work, Jan Cannon and Carol Frietsch design the Film Club layout.

Contemplating her next move, Jill Phillips creates another original layout.

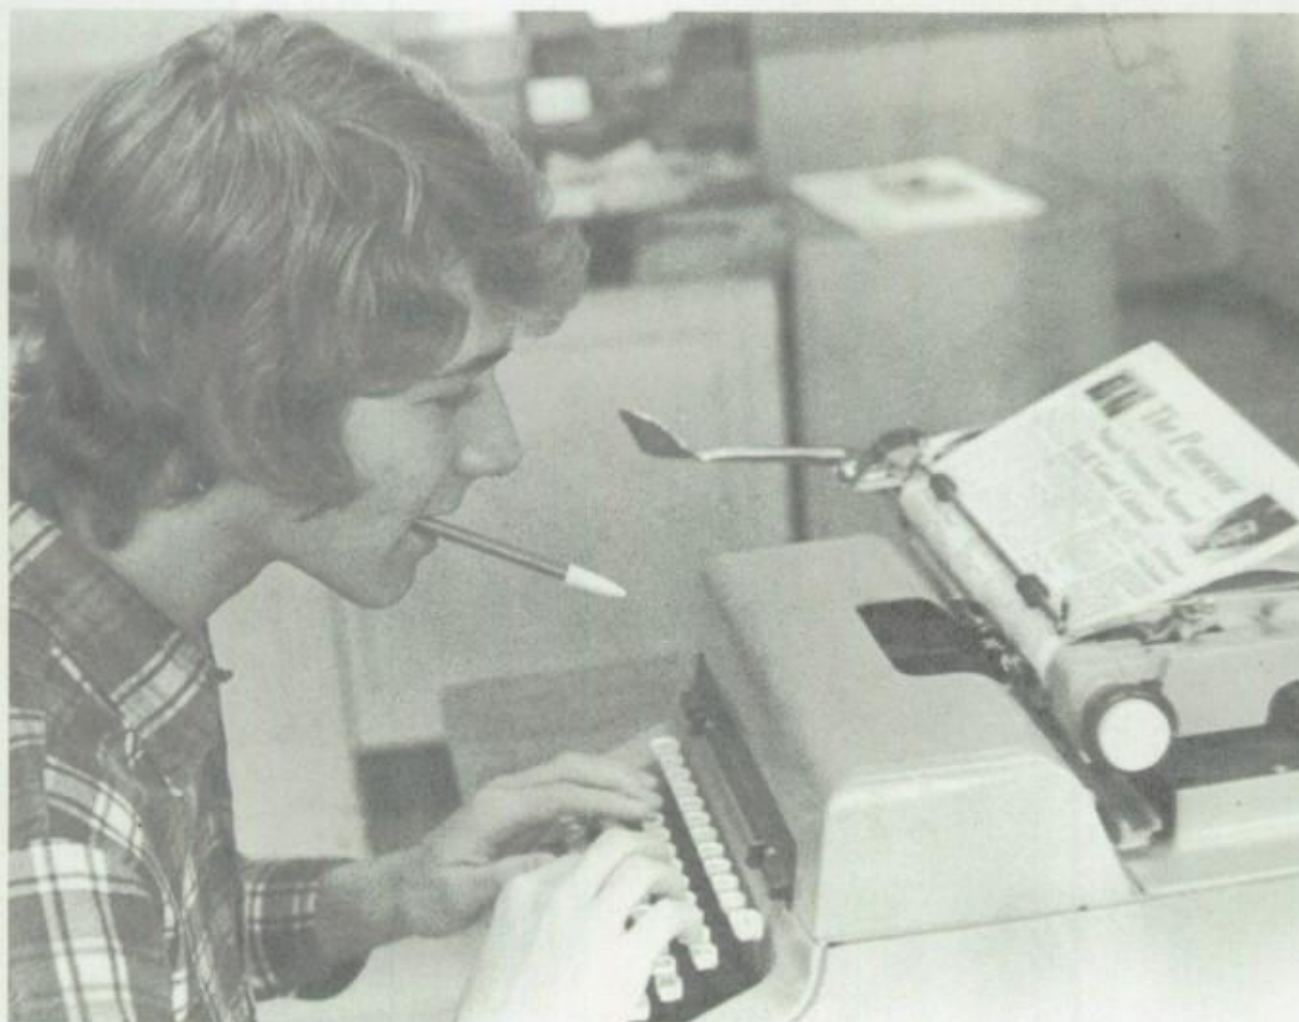

When he's not busy snapping pictures for EPoCH, John Otey finds time to shoot trains.

Powwow Gives Us a Sneak Peek at What's New

Doing it his own way, Mario Saltarelli types up the front page.

Mr. Wilkinson offers his advice as Amy Kolb and Patti Waldon struggle over another page.

All lined up, POWWOW staff proofreads their work.

The POWWOW, with eleven first class citations and two All-American Awards to its credit since 1962, achieved another excellent publications year under Editor-in-Chief Jim Johnson, who was, incidentally, EP's only National Merit Scholarship candidate this year. Amy Kolb, Pat Waldon, Rose Horsley, and Tim Johnston offered valuable senior help. Juniors who contributed much were Angela Hannah, Pat Murphy, and Elaine Trumble. Sophomore Mario Saltarelli headed the proof editors' group. Mario also compiled and edited material for "Powwow Style", a booklet containing rules of sentence structure, punctuation, and news writing. Jeff Reid headed the photography staff. Journalism class members served as reporters for clubs and classroom activities.

Lending a helping camera, Jeff Reid adds action to POWWOW pages.

We Are Ready FSA, FTA, and FHA Future in the Making

FSA was kept on the go this year. The secretaries-to-be held their meetings at different business organizations to learn about different office facilities, how they are used, and what duties are associated with certain office jobs. The group visited Caterpillar (Mossville plants), Tazewell Savings and Loan, WRAU TV, and the Peoria Journal Star. This year was truly an educational one for the Future Secretaries Association. Another busy club of 1976 was FHA. They held several meetings this year planning and doing fun activities. A bake sale was held at Sheridan Village, and bowling at East Peoria's Bowlairo was done not long after the Christmas party. Trips to "Old Chicago", a Sweetheart dance, and a trip to St. Louis were some of the future events of the future "domestic artists."

Keeping the atmosphere light and humorous, Vice-Pres. Ruth Pennock confidently takes the podium.

Learning together: As her young friend discovers the world of reading, Annabel Yackle rediscovers the purpose of her chosen career.

As Pres. Lee Ann German asks for nominations, secretary Debbie Jones tells of each nominee's contribution to the club.

The Excitement Never Ends

Teams are picked in preparation for a soccer game, which was just one of many activities that the German Club members could have fun participating in at the fall picnic held at Fondulac Park.

German Club brings good food and new friends. Frau Johnson, the club advisor, has influenced many German students to participate enthusiastically in selling Gummi Bears, Softi Chews, and Eurodollars all year long. The money is then used towards scholarships.

The members also enjoyed a fall picnic, a hayrack ride in October, a roller-skating party, and especially the Christmas dinner at the Barn. They finished the year with their annual German Fest. Parents were invited to this potluck event where everyone got the chance to dance to lively polkas. Frau Johnson also enjoyed herself and she added that she likes to work with brilliant, enterprising, and hard-working students year after year.

Trying to decide what to eat, German Club members dig into a delightful Christmas dinner during the annually held Christmas Party.

French Club: Worth Every Minute

Instead of entering a float, French Club marched their way towards the Emerald City in the Homecoming parade as characters from the Wizard of Oz.

French Club members began the year with a pot-luck, where they got better acquainted. Involvement in homecoming activities gave the members of French Club their first chance to become active in school projects. Along with their Laurel and Hardy skit in the Variety Show, they entered an original "float" in the homecoming parade as the members dressed like the Wizard of Oz characters. Not to be left out of the Noël festivities, the French Club gathered at Madame Stokes's house for their Christmas Party and a demonstration on "How to make a Bouche de Noël" (French yule log).

Once again, the club's money-making projects of selling perfume and candy were a big success. Another highlight of the year was a slide presentation of France. Like many other organizations, French Club worked concession stands during ballgames. They completed the year with a spring banquet where they served French dishes (foods) and a picnic for the election of new officers.

"This is how we made it" could be the title for this activity. Meals were prepared by each person and brought to Mrs. Stokes's house for a potluck dinner. Afterwards a booklet was prepared with all the recipes for these tasty dishes.

Mr. and Mrs. Stokes present a sure fire cure for heart-burn after their delicious meal of French dishes that some of the French club members prepared. Thanks to the Stokes there is always a place to hold meetings and other activities.

Latin Is Not Dead It Is Immortal

Keeping her enthusiasm at its peak is Pres. Monica Schmitt's secret for keeping the members interested and informed.

Having fun is important too, and at every Latin Club activity that's all that's important.

With a look of intent concentration on their faces, Latin Club members decide on a date for their upcoming activity.

Latin Club, one of the largest clubs at EPCHS, participated in many activities throughout the year. They began with a Freshman Initiation Weiner Roast. At this event, the new members were "slaves" to the veterans. The Christmas party got all the members in the Christmas mood as they sang carols in Latin and drank "Pomegranate Punch." Bowling, originally a Roman game, was popular in the club. The highlight of the year was the Roman banquet where all members dressed in togas in commemoration of the early days of Rome. All these activities were planned with the help of the advisor "Magistra" Fulton, whose concern for the students and Latin culture keeps the club going. Latin Club gets more and more popular from year to year. Crescit eundo.*

*It grows as it goes.

Speech Club and Debaters Talk Their Way Through Another Year

But first a word from our sponsor. Debater Debbie Legge practices her rebuttal for the Debate tournament coming up.

With the assistance of Mr. League, senior Randy Cheek searches for evidence which will be used in an up-coming debate.

The members of EPCHS's Speech Club have the fastest lips in the West. These silver-tongued speakers compete in many contests in and out of central Illinois. They have been most successful at Manuel, Northern, Richwoods, Bradley, and Thorton. Debaters did not compete at Bloomington High School or Freeport, although other groups of Speech Club did. Sectionals began in March after District finals. The state tournament was the conclusion to a busy year which began the summer of '75. During the summer, Debaters went to workshops to improve their rebuttals. The club had a spring awards banquet, funded by the selling of candy bars and membership dues. Mr. Koch and Mr. League, the club advisors, believe that public speaking is very important to the educational experience and self-fulfillment of the student.

Freshmen Speech Club members learn that Speech Club is everything its cracked up to be as they look for evidence in preparation of their speeches.

MARCHING BAND DOESN'T JUST MARCH THEY DANCE YELL

Freshmen Mary Campen and Steve Stock-siek do a jig before practice fourth hour.

Get ready, get ready, halt, one, two.

Before kids are ever thinking of school, the Marching Red Raiders take to the field to prepare for the fall season of football games, parades and competitions. A lot of time, hard work, and outstanding group effort make our band one of the best in the state. How would you like to stand at attention for ten minutes in 90 degree weather with a bee on your horn's second valve? The people in the stands never see the sweat covered bodies, the mud streaked pants, or the expressions of agony on the marchers' faces. All they see is the precision-drilled product on the field.

KEEP THE BEAT

Scott Behrends drums up the beat for the rest of the band.

LOOK SEXY

During Homecoming's halftime ceremony, junior drum major John Otey stands at attention.

Awaiting halftime, marching band patiently sits joining in with the cheers of the cheerleaders and making up their own, "We eat Wheaties, we are fit, the other team doesn't, they eat . . . shredded wheat."

Madrigals and Nine Strings

While performing in their make-believe castle, medieval lords and ladies sing the traditions of Merrie Olde England.

"Tonight, as we lift our glasses in a toast to the Christmas season, we greet our old friends and we welcome our new ones upon this occasion." These words introduced the audience to the sixth annual Madrigal Dinner Concert, the re-enacting of medieval lords and ladies who gathered in their castle to observe the traditional Christmas festivities of Merrie Olde England.

Starting with rehearsals a week before school began, the Madrigal singers set out to memorize approximately twenty-five songs, get their costumes fitted and "get into" the character of nobility.

The Madrigal performers gave extra performances this year as they not only performed three in a row for students, and once for faculty, American Business Women, and St. Monica's Parish, but also found time to go to contest.

In one of their more serious moments, jesters Randy Douglas and Jill Miller read the Christ story from the ancient scroll.

They say practice makes perfect and that's what they did. After school in the commons, the Madrigals and jesters practiced and practiced and their performances showed it.

Singin' and Stringin'

This unique ensemble was formed in 1971 primarily as a means of recruiting junior high school string players to audition for the EPCHS orchestra. The group is made up of the top two chairs of each section, determined through an audition each year from the school's concert orchestra. Often the individual parts divide, placing a great deal of responsibility on the individual. Because of the absence of a conductor, the students must learn to listen to each other and the total sound, so as to stay together without any visual signs or beats. The group entertained at many different functions in East Peoria, at EPCHS and in the surrounding communities.

Backed-up by her comrades in arms (and chins), Chris Wilkinson does her fair share in the overall group effort.

Individual talents highlight the originality of the style that characterizes this string ensemble.

Keynotes Bring Back That Old "Broadway" Feeling

A week before school started, eager students practiced in hopes of becoming a member of E.P.'s swing choir, the Keynotes. Although there were only two returning veterans, the young group of singers had help getting it all together at a workshop with the Newcomers, a swing choir from W.I.U. After becoming a part of the group, members realized that practicing three times a week was necessary in maintaining their high quality performances.

Keynotes performed not only at school functions but also throughout the community. Besides occasional performances at the choir concerts, the swing choir also participated in the Variety Show and the spaghetti supper in February. Off-campus, they sang before church organizations and at nursing homes. Along with other central Illinois high schools, the Keynotes took part in the state solo and ensemble competition at Illinois Central College.

Having fun is what practice is all about for Darendia Garner, Tim Riegenbach, and friends.

Togetherness is all Keynotes need to put things in harmony.

Glowing in the spotlight, Keynotes thrill the Variety Show audience.

Chess Club: Competitive Concentration

Chess is a game of patience and concentration, a challenge for the few who want to test their skills of logic and strategy.

The East Peoria Chess Club was set up this year to provide interested students the opportunity to play chess and practice these skills.

The club also sponsored an all-school chess tournament, which was won by one of the members, Bill Hounshell. The club took part in inter-scholastic competition with other schools in the area.

Challenging other members builds concentration for future competition.

Taking time to relax, Bill Hounshell, John Stucky, Dan Son, and Don Oesch display a large version of the chessboard.

John Stucky slowly moves to the next square, as Bill Hounshell plans his counter-attack.

Art Is Beautiful and Art Club Keeps It Movin'

Art Club completed a variety of projects throughout the school and community this year. A few of these contributions were the mural in the Student Commons which was finished just in time for the EPoCH party last summer, scenery for the Madrigal Dinner Concerts this past Christmas, the backdrop for the Winter and Spring band concerts, and pennants of the Mid-State-Nine teams on the football field. A wall mural for the first floor of "A" building was also designed by these talented students. Club members collaborated with the House of Representatives for a mural on a building at the four corners in downtown East Peoria. Posters were made for the Homecoming alumni, Library Week, and several bicentennial celebrations. There is evidence everywhere of the many contributions by Art Club throughout the year.

It looks as if her job was effortless, but Debbie Cioni knows it takes time and accuracy to get the work "just right."

Remembering a job well done, Art Club will probably never forget the Student Common's mural which really brought their talents in view.

More Than Just 'Fun and Games'

Chemistry Club Plans Ahead

Chemistry Club kept busy this year! Their activities ran the gamut from a picnic to a field trip to the Chicago Museum of Science and Industry and the John G. Shedd Aquarium.

The year began with a hayrack ride and weiner roast at Timberline Park, then, progressed to a clean up of the school grounds along with the Environmental branch of Chemistry Club. There were festivities over Christmas at the club president's house (he probably hasn't recovered yet).

To make future trips to Chicago and St. Louis possible, the club sold candy bars to the many eager students at East Peoria.

Ideas pouring in, each person gives his views after catching the enthusiasm of the other members.

Putting their heads together, Chemistry Club members decide on the most exciting, yet economical activities.

As problems arise, Pres. Rick Wanner must keep his sense of humor and unfailing tact.

Focusing on Films

Had you've been passing room 322A on a humid day in the afternoon in September you would've heard a conversation similiar to this:

"Let's go to New York."
 "Do we have any money?"
 "How'll we get there?"
 "Let's walk."

Film Club is not known for its practicality, levelheadedness, or sensability. But somehow they manage to provide a creditable showing of movies for a variety of personal tastes throughout the school year.

Lecturing on the evils of money, Tim Johnston asks for ideas on charity projects.

Absorbed in a spine tingling movie review, Jan Cannon, Danita Moore, Janet Kilper and Rhonda Phillips decide which movie will draw a crowd.

This is where it's at! Movie reviews give Film Club members an idea of film content.

Mr. Strelecky loads newspapers after Radio Club's paper drive.

No this isn't a picture of the bionic man's heart beating. It's an oscilloscope. What's an oscilloscope? A new piece of equipment that Radio Club obtained this year which measures the frequency of a wave form.

Visiting Channel 47's mobile unit, Radio Club learns about the different equipment from chief engineer Steve Connet.

Getting Tuned In

Radio Club is probably one of the least known of the clubs at E.P.C.H.S. This is truly surprising considering they're a bunch of "hams." The following might have been a conversation between an old club member and a new member before he was added to the proud radio family.

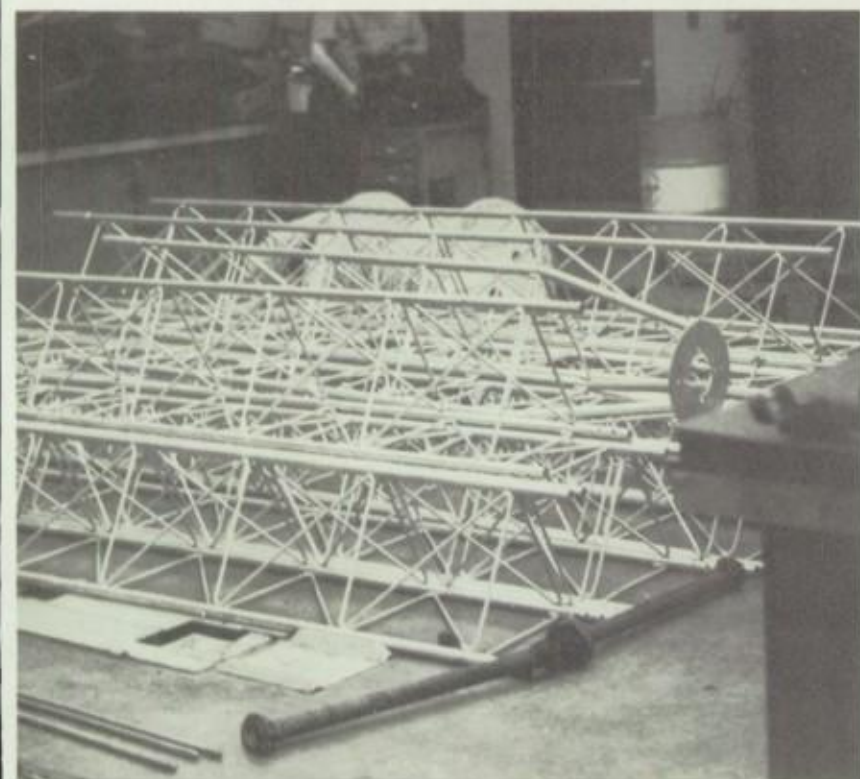

"We can send and receive transmissions from all over the world."

"Really?"

"Well . . . would you believe Canton?"

A glistening 170 foot tower was erected to compensate for their growing needs. With this tower they can (hopefully) transmit to other countries.

Then for an even greater sensation of excitement, the club visited Channel 47 to observe advanced techniques in broadcasting. Congratulations to Radio Club for a very successful year.

Only the beginning of Radio Club's 170 foot tower located in the teacher's parking lot in between A and C buildings.

Hitting the Books

When speaking of progress, the idea of learning is closely related. Class rooms are forever changing from the original teaching techniques to newer methods like co-op or individualized instruction. The type of courses taught are also expanding to new and various areas of study. Now instead of math, English and science, students may study electricity, business communications, or even something as far out as astronomy. Also accompanying the new and various ideas in academics are the relationships that the teachers and students share that have become more understanding, thus creating a better atmosphere for learning.

Covering an important topic in U S History, Mr. Sanders gets the discussion going with an introductory speech on the 1890's. In this particular class the assignment is planned out for the entire year. Three essay questions are assigned each week on the period of history being studied.

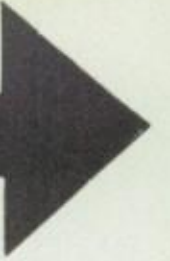

Heading towards the main office, Mrs. Gerlach gets an early morning start in preparing for the day's events.

Roger Higdon begins making his next six weeks' project by using a radial arm saw, one of the machines available to those who take an industrial education class.

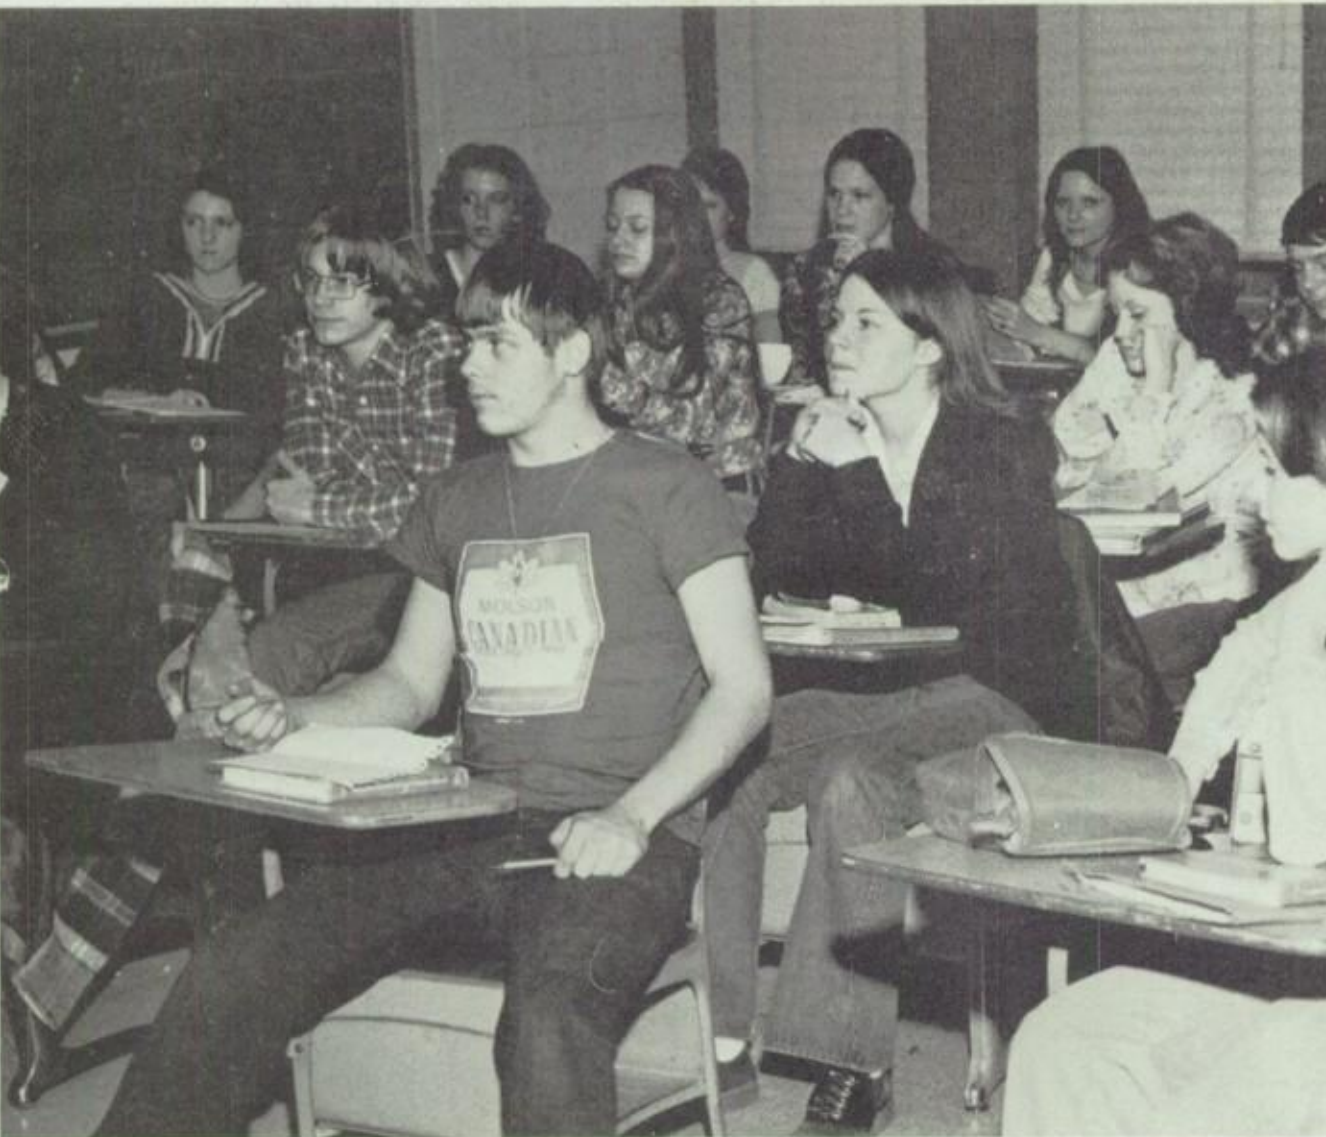

In individualized biology, a course offered the sophomore year, Jim Brummit combines careful work in his daily assignments to insure a successful result.

Beginning their musical career, freshman girls make the most of first hour, building up their vocal experience and discovering the basics of music theory.

Following the daily schedule, these sophomores find out about the basics of government in civics; a prerequisite to graduating offered as a one year course for sophomores and a semester course for seniors.

Many lessons are taught in the classroom besides those that come out of a textbook. These students find that teamwork is a tool that can conquer any obstacle.

Pausing to reflect or maybe to daydream, Gary Cross wonders why he ever signed up for this math course.

After going over this problem many times, Mrs. LeFebvre's class finally sees the light.

Students try to decipher the unknown language of college prep math.

Math Department Introduces A Smorgasbord of Classes

If you happened to be passing the rooms on 3rd floor B you would see a quantity of unknowns studying algebra, geometry, college prep math, or computer programming.

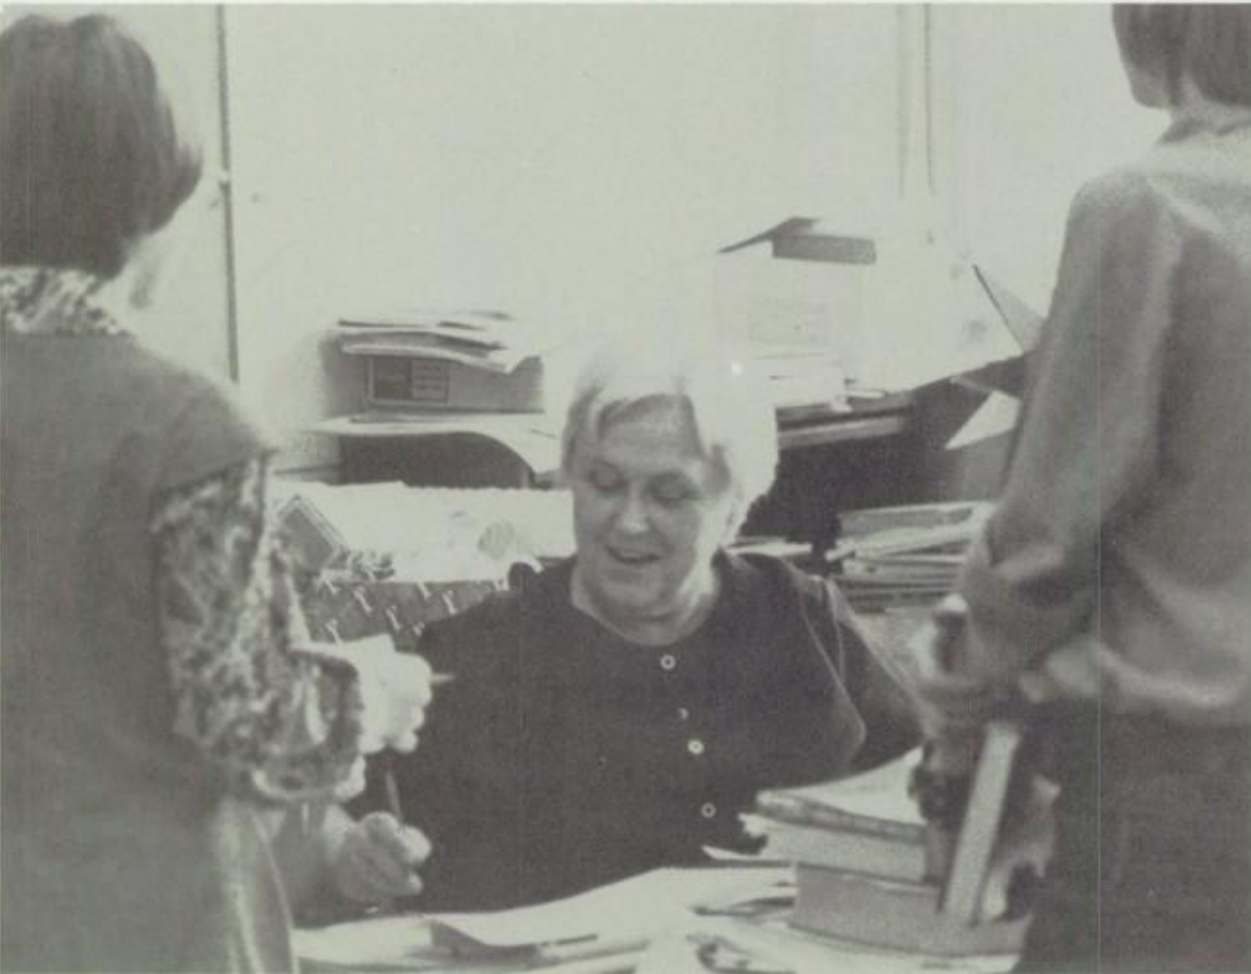

Proving that there's more to math than  $2+2$ , students chartered a bus to the Chicago Museum of Science and Industry in late October. There they saw demonstrations ranging from the subject of probability to the procedure of performing an appendectomy. Hopefully students will be able to apply some of the concepts observed.

Proving that math can be fun, Leah Simmons works out another proof.

Even when you've blown a fuse, story problems add variety.

Student and teacher work together to complete the day's math assignment.

NO JOB TOO BIG FOR EP BUSINESS STUDENTS

Practicing for when they have jobs, third hour shorthand takes a coffee break.

Steve Kuntz, Richard Camp, and Kevin Miller catch their breath between timings in personal typing.

Preparing for the business world, many students acquire much needed skills in business courses offered here at EPCHS. Typing and shorthand are essential tools in any secretarial job or one that requires these skills. Accounting and business machines classes help to prepare students for college classes in these courses for jobs as bookkeepers or accountants. Business communications (or business English) and speech assist students in grammar and communication to get their ideas across to one another clearly and effectively. If you are business minded and desire a well-paying job, get involved in business courses for success in your chosen field.

The students in Mrs. Rhodes's shorthand class have their own version of Beat the Clock.

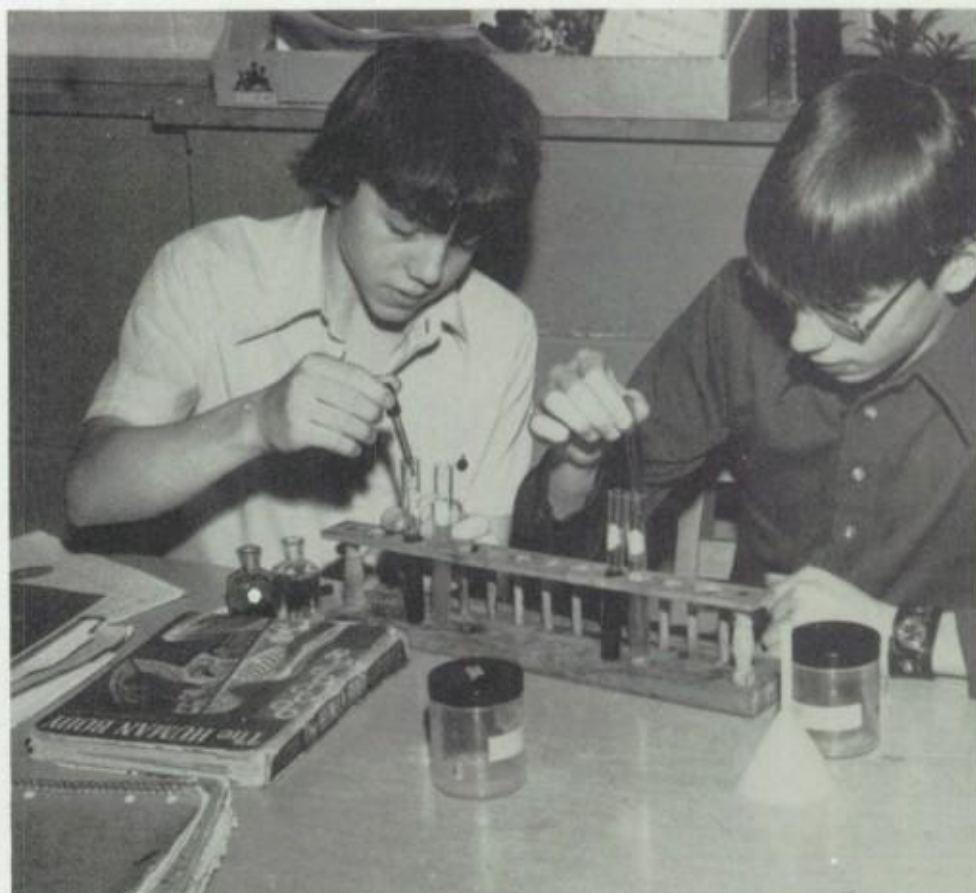

In personal typing you learn many things, including the proper way to fold a paper in half.

Mad (?) Scientists Infest "B" Building

Creating their own "mad" formula Bob Hedstrom and his lab partner work together in freshman science.

Working to get that "A", Beth Rodgers, Becky McMurry and Don Decker explain their experiment to Ms. Pyle.

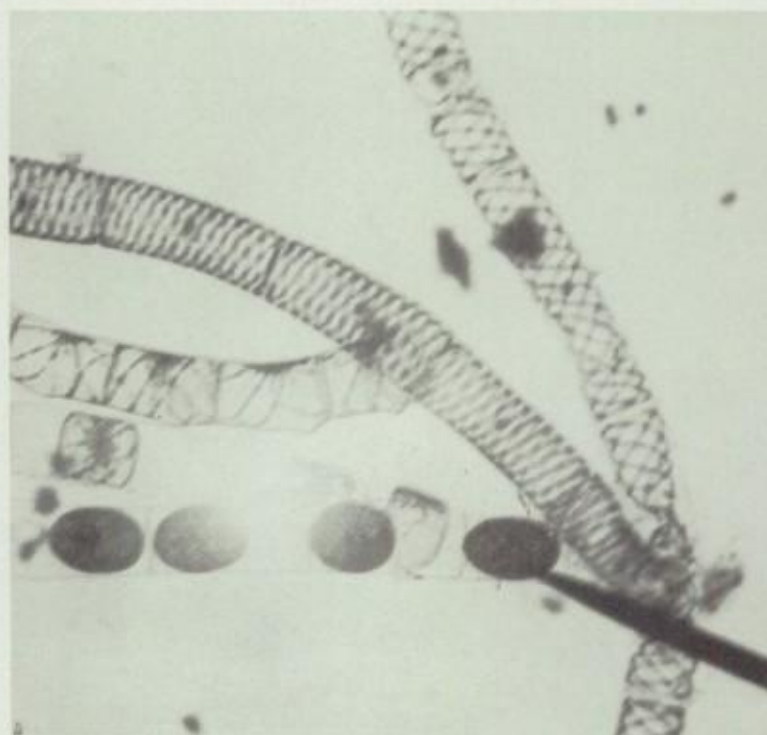

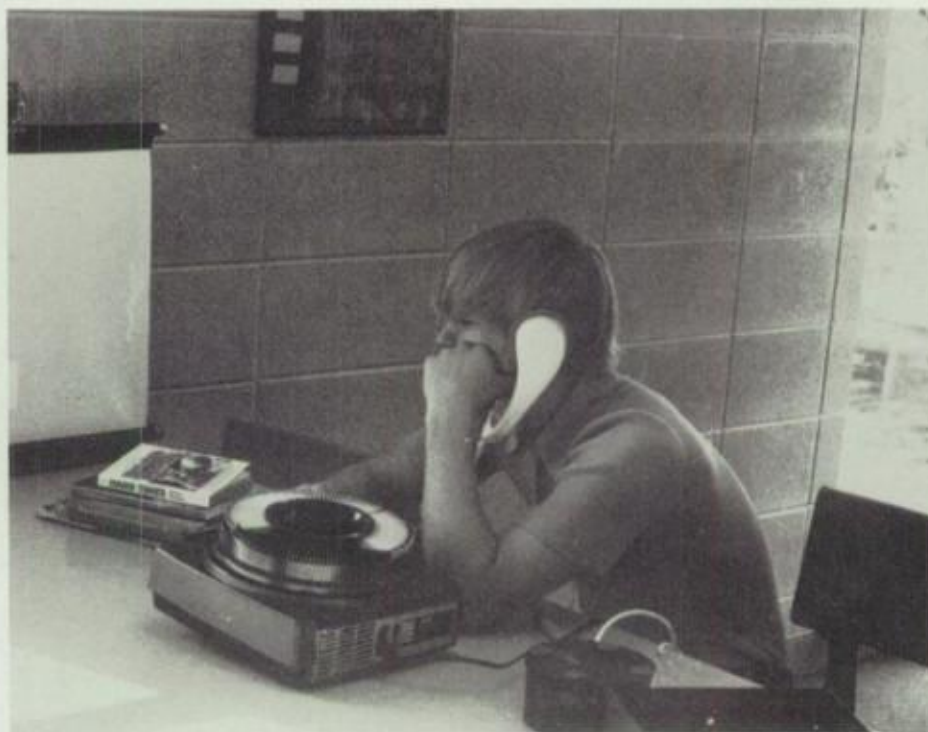

The courses of sciences offered this year has been expanded. Advanced individualized biology is one of the new programs that students can participate in. This class specializes in the study of different facets of zoology.

The SEC (Students for Environmental Concern) was formed for those who are especially interested in taking an active part in preserving the outdoors. Members recycled paper, planted trees, cleaned up the school grounds, and enjoyed outings in the woods. Along with these new innovations the regular Physics, Chemistry, Earth Science, Biology, and General Studies classes were available.

Stopping to plan their next move in Chemistry are "mad" scientists Dan Simmons and Steve Coyle.

Hoping to learn something new, in the "Wonderful World of Biology" John Harvey studies for his seminar.

Intense concentration is shown on Phil Koth's face as he checks the temperature of his solution.

What's spiral, vibrating, and circular? What else but a spirogyra which you might see under a microscope in Biology.

HOME EC FOR THE TRADITIONAL HOMEMAKER

Some of the students at E.P.C.H.S. may be following in the footsteps of the most famous chefs and fashion designers of our time. Before these goals could ever be achieved the fundamentals of cooking, sewing and designing must be studied.

Guys and girls alike study meal planning, family living, fashions, and interior decorating. As a result, the Home Ec classes satisfy the individual needs of the traditional homemaker and the liberated bachelor.

Learning the agony of becoming a good sewer, Debbie Bowers discovers she has to rip out her zipper again!

Mrs. Drake demonstrates the old proverb, "a stitch in time saves nine" while showing Vicki Hilton the method of handstitching a hem.

AND THE LIBERATED BACHELOR

Crystal Dooley gets Vicki Hilton's "measurements" as she pins Vicki's skirt before hemming.

Pam Perkins and Denise Davis peel eggs in preparation for one of their "home cooked meals" in cooking class.

Thumbing through a catalog, Julie Schwab, Jill Boundy and Rhonda Yemm search for the perfect look in clothing.

Learning to fend for themselves, these independent young men are preparing for happy days of bachelorhood.

Variety Makes Up Our English Department

Last minute studying! These two students "cram" before a test in English.

Choices! Deciding which choice is correct, Linda Williams takes an English test.

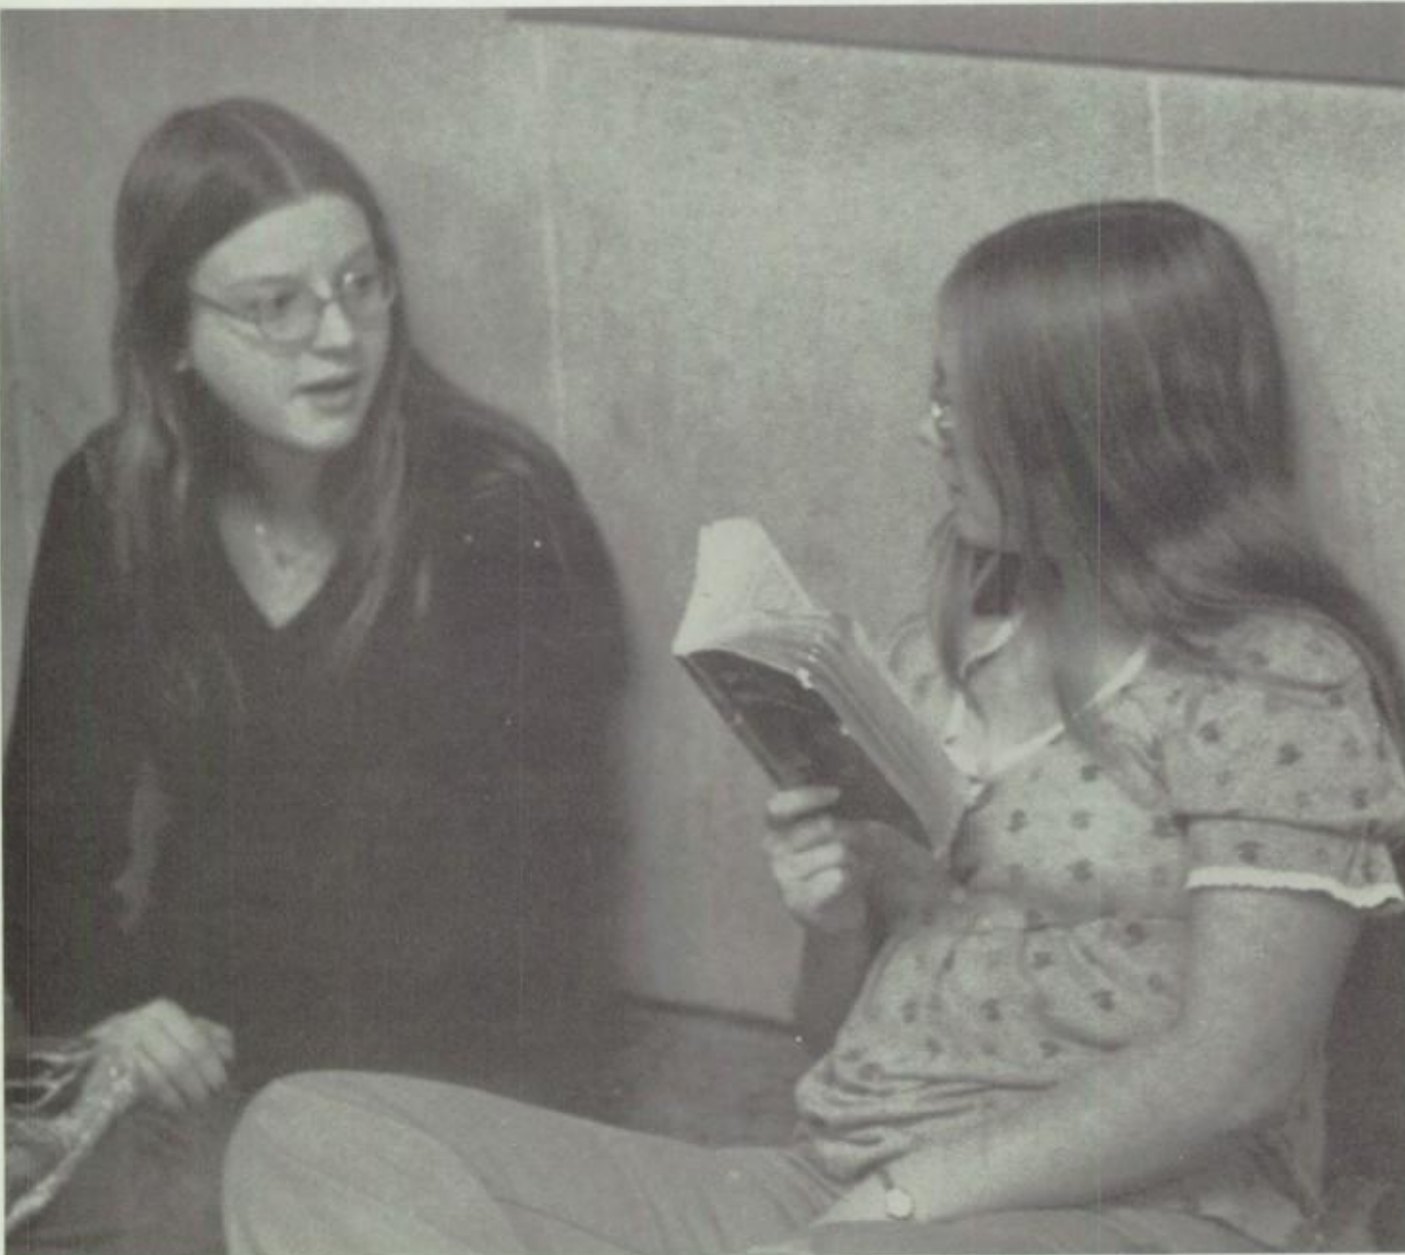

One of these days this speech class will learn to expect the unexpected, pop quizzes on Monday.

Making it over the "obstacle course" (semester exam in English) Lisa Dart sighs a sigh of relief.

First things first! This girl struggles to finish one of a variety of English novels which require much out of class time.

"Checking it out" in her notebook, Pam Lynch listens intently to her English teacher.

Eighteen dedicated teachers make up the FCHS English Department. They teach everything from fundamentals of grammar to the more subtle points of complex literature.

An innovation this year is Communications, a one semester unit required of all sophomores. The course includes work in speech and is of immense value to all students. Both the teachers and the students describe this course as beneficial and enjoyable.

Outstanding juniors recognized by the National Council of Teachers of English for excellence in writing were Pat Murphy, Paul Pearson, Linda Sandman, and Elaine Trumble.

YOU SHOULD HEAR WHAT THEY'RE SAYING IN FRENCH!

Where else do you get to taste cafe au lait, homemade bread or fondue besides in Home Ec? Taking a break from the routine of French classes, students got to sample a little of French culture. While first year students learned the basics of reading, writing, speaking, and listening to the French language, second year French reinforced these skills. Students taking third and fourth year read extensively as they studied culture and civilization. During all four years, conversation was stressed as the students were compelled to ask their questions and converse only in the French language.

Students anticipate seeing another French film.

At the French breakfast, Angela Massey and Mrs. Stokes enjoy the food.

You never know till you try. Cindy Couri never knew French rolls were so delicious.

GERMAN: A LIVELY CHANGE OF PACE

... What do you associate with Germany? Could it be beer or Hitler? Actually the closest you'll get to this is the "wasser" from the fountain in the hall and the teaching of "Frau" Johnson.

First year students were introduced to the basic vocabulary and grammar. Second year classes built on these basic concepts and began sentence structure. Third and fourth year students "tried" to begin speaking the language fluently. Students enjoyed the variety of German class with movies such as the "Guten Tag" series and the legendary "Nosterato" (Dracula).

Sandi Phillis seeks some friendly advice from Stewart Smith in German.

Ready to go, Jackie Newell and Gina Meyer await the bell.

Enjoying a free moment in German, Dan Simmons and Dwayne Dale take time out.

As Angela Hannah shows pictures of the reformation, third year German gets acquainted with Martin Luther.

Latin: Alive and Well at EP

Latin class is definitely an unforgettable experience to all Latin "scholars". The first shock for beginning students is having the privilege of singing "Mica, Mica Parva Stella." Classes not only involve translating and learning about ancient Roman history, but it also teaches about different parts of speech (gulp) and helps build vocabulary (what's that?) knowledge. Since many other languages are derived from Latin, it is also beneficial in other subjects (native English).

Waiting for just a few more lucky words, this Latin Bingo player has a good chance of winning.

Robin and Julie prove that Latin is more than just translations.

READING LAB MAKES THE TASK EASIER

In its third year of operation, the Reading and Study Skills Center is assisting students as they strengthen their reading background and it shows how all the skills associated with the reading process can be related to all content areas.

To determine the student's general reading abilities, he is given a group reading test. A program is then set up in which the student works both independently and in small groups to attempt to increase his overall reading progress.

Reading speed, comprehension, and vocabulary are the essential skills developed daily. The tape program enables the student to increase listening accuracy while developing proficiency, in following directions, outlining, and detecting the main idea. Mr. Chiesi is the head of this program.

Mr. Chiesi gets in on the picture again as he shows a freshman the proper way to use a controlled reader.

Jamie Gustafson works to improve her reading skills with a little helpful prodding from Mr. Chiesi.

From the look on Paula Straker's face, I wonder if the material in Reading Lab is censored.

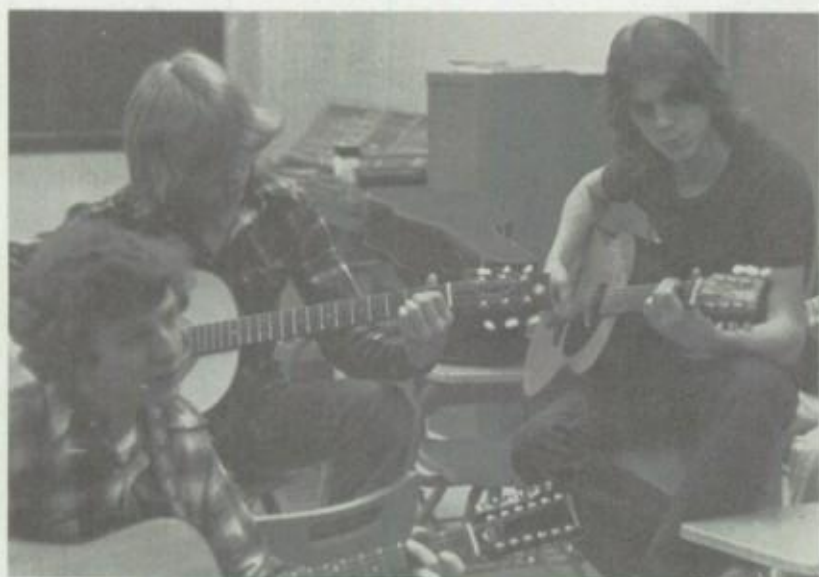

Lost among the listening stations, Mr. Chiesi proudly surveys his domain in room 302-A.

The Wide World of Special Ed

Working for perfection, Dennis Binkley puts the finishing touches on his ceramics project in art.

Getting ready for the "A" lunch rush, Tony Roy assists in the cafeteria during his free hour.

Learning the basics of guitar playing, this trio proves that learning can be fun.

Putting the finishing touches on his mug, Bob Danzer enjoys his ceramics class.

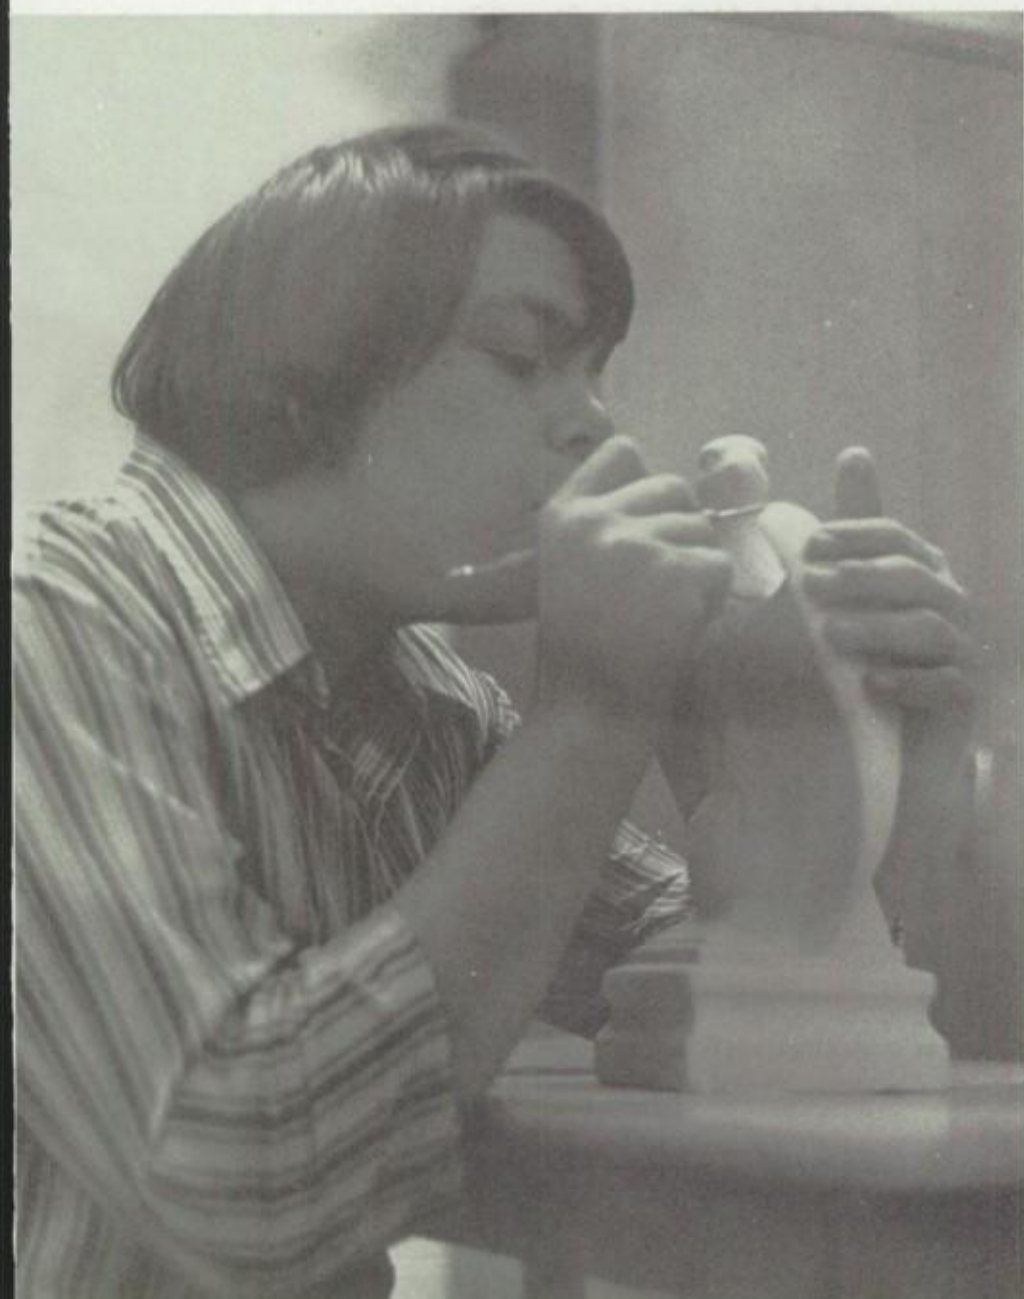

Keeping our halls spotless, Tim Hawbecker works heartily in "A" building.

The special education department offers a variety of educational experiences for involved students. They are exposed to extra-curricular activities that include field trips, camp-outs, and Bicentennial events.

Before graduation all students participate in a savings program and may have held a part-time or fulltime job. With the addition of two new teachers on the staff, students followed an academic program that covered various required subjects.

Touching up on a few last spots, Eddie Carr finishes his Bicentennial project, an American eagle.

Instructing Sandy Park on the correct way to macrame, Mrs. Jenkins helps her finish her belt.

Getting the Job Done Right

The industrial education students of today will be the technicians, draftsmen, and builders of tomorrow. Freshmen Exploratory gives students the opportunity to explore a variety of fields such as Drafting, Metals, Electricity, and Power classes. The use of basic tools and techniques are learned as students progress through the program. A woods class is offered at the beginning of the sophomore year. Once the student decides on the specific class that interests him, he can further his knowledge in the field by taking advanced classes. At the completion of these classes, students can feel reasonably qualified in their specific area for future employment.

Drilling away at her woods project, Terri Agee makes a breakthrough for Women's Lib.

Precision is an important part of Metals, as demonstrated by these boys working for accuracy.

Getting their cylinder block together is the goal of these dedicated mechanics.

Learning About Our World . . . Government . . . Nation . . .

The study of people's culture, their institutions and their history, forms the integral parts of the social studies program. Through such a study a student should gain an understanding of and an appreciation for traditions, standards, ideas and values which are different from his or her own. Although every student is familiar with the traditional social study classes offered here at E.P.C.H.S., some forget that the classes of Economics, Psychology, and Behavioral Sciences, also fall under this heading.

Never too busy to assist his students, Mr. Ripka shows this trait, by helping this student in the hall.

The bridge to racial equality is understanding. This was the theme of Dr. Garrett's speech to fifth hour history students.

Asking questions is the first step to learning the inquiry method. Mike Walston asks about the Homestead Act during the new Homestead simulation.

P.E. Lets You Be You

Expressing himself in P.E. this student participates in basketball, one of the activities through which you can be what you want to be.

Getting it together, Alan Teige and Sheary Robinson make a group effort in senior co-ed dancing.

P.E. is required not only to keep young people in shape but to expose them to a great variety of sports. Here the individual is encouraged to express himself in everything from modern dance to wrestling. The types of activities are remarkably similar as girls and guys participate in many of the same sports. Co-ed dancing is "enjoyed" by all as the students hover on opposite sides of the gym, warily sizing each other up. Juniors and seniors have the privilege of entering into other sports co-educationally also.

Using teamwork in 6th hour girls' P.E. seniors Lisa Theobald and Debbie Weeks saw firewood in hopes of staying warm this winter.

The Driving Experience

Discovering which is the gas pedal and which is the brake, Pam Reichert gets her first driving lesson "Behind the Wheel."

Expecting the "thrill of his life", Mr. Hoffmire gets in the car ready for another day of hair-raising experiences.

Going along with the rest of the world, E. P. converts to the international sign system.

Countless times each week, the Driver Ed teachers put their lives into the hands of their students. These young motorists range in experience and driving aspirations from Evil Knievel and the Indy 500 pros to puttering kiddies who don't know what an accelerator is. Somehow, through the "patient" guidance of these calm veteran drivers, students hopefully find a level between these extremes before completing their hours of supervised driving.

This sculptured head of Ben Franklin, done by Ed Zalisko, seems appropriate for the Bicentennial year.

Taking it piece by piece, Lisa Theobald plans an original collage in hopes of creating a winning design for the cover of a telephone book.

Debbie Butler portrays her interpretation of America's 200th anniversary through the painting she plans to enter in a Bicentennial contest.

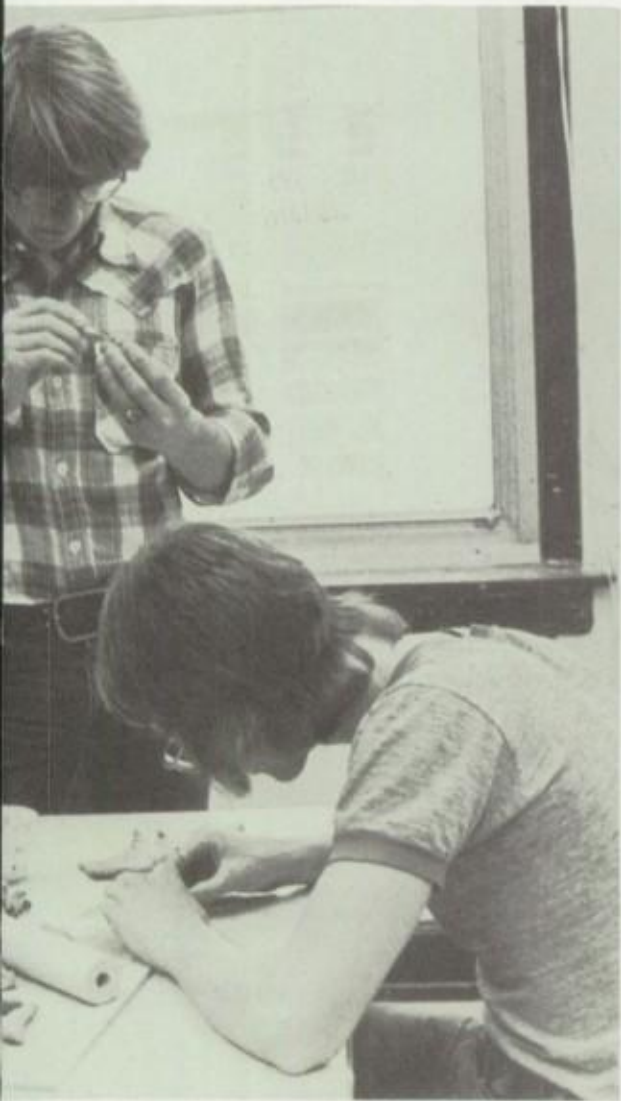

Gradually taking shape, it won't be long before this lump of clay is transformed into the bust of John F. Kennedy.

Just the Right Touch

In art and craft classes the creative artist interested in painting, sculpture, ceramics and other mediums was free to pursue his creativity under the guidance of the instructor. As each student's "creation" was special because of their individual style, they could experience pride in accomplishment. Along with this came the paint that didn't wash out, ceramics breaking in the kiln and asphyxiation from the fumes of the craft room.

Steve Reinholdt, Mark Webb and Pete Reeser find that teamwork gets the job done as they work together on the sculpture of a body.

Craft crazy kids, Danny Friend, Tom Kerby and Rick Belcher exercise their skill in woodcutting.

. . . And the Band Plays on

Playing at half-time shows, Marching Band opened the Band Department's season. These dedicated members started practices a week before school began in order to have their show perfected by the time our first football game arrived. As basketball season opened, Pep Band's turn to entertain the fans also came, as they played pre-game shows for the home basketball games.

Joining forces with Concert Orchestra and Master Choir, Symphonic Band played in the annual Christmas Vesper Concert. Symphonic and Intermediate Bands played together in the Tazewell County Band Festival. Symphonic Band ended the regular season at their Spring Senior Recognition Concert, they also played at Graduation—the last performance for the many senior Band members.

Adding flash to the performance, Raiderettes and Marching Band put their acts together for a great show.

Joining the other Tazewell County Bands, Intermediate and Symphonic Band play in the County's Massed Band.

Giving it all he's got, Ralph (Bix) Norton helps entertain the crowd by playing one of Pep Band's favorite tunes.

Playing one last song, Marching Band ends this half-time show with a grand finale!

Symphonic Band warms up for another hectic rehearsal in fourth hour.

Slaving through another rehearsal Dave Thewlis and Pat Murphy practice with their white tornadoes (tubas).

Opening the season with the Prologue Concert, Master Choir combined efforts with the Concert Orchestra. The Choraliers and the Concert Choir gave their first performance at the Tazewell County Choral Festival. Then came the Christmas Vespers Concert with plenty of time in between to prepare for the Mid-State Nine Choral and Orchestra Festival. Again working with the Orchestra, Master Choir gave a concert at Westminster Presbyterian Church in Peoria. Although the Senior Recognition or Spring Concert was the last full concert, Master Choir ended another hectic year by singing at the Baccalaureate Ceremonies.

In between concerts all choir members were kept busy with M&M sales and helping at the Madrigal Dinners and Spaghetti Supper. Although time consuming effort was put into their concerts throughout the year, Choir members found it difficult performing before critical judges at solo, ensemble, and organization contest. For their last project the choir released their tensions from the heavy scheduled year at their annual party.

Concert Choir girls sing songs of the season during an informal fourth hour session.

Working on audition requirements is just one of many things one does as a freshman Chorister.

Rehearsing for the Mid-State Nine Festival, Concert Choir joins forces with Master Choir for the song, "Laudate Pueri."

A Group With Something to Say

Starting the musical season, Master Choir opens the program with "Music Here."

Getting the proper syllable on the right pitch is one of the many jobs of the director as demonstrated by Mr. Barnett.

The II Soprano and I Bass sections work together as they practice for their Lenten Concert.

Orchestra Plays Music . . .

Percussionists Pam Lynch and Kim Miller work together on the bells, as they keep the beat for Concert Orchestra.

Second violin players Mary Ellen Bradley and Marilyn Calkin bring back memories of King Arthur in a selection from "Camelot."

Doing their part, Stewart Smith and John Otey play with the Concert Orchestra in a Monday night rehearsal.

. . . Like a Symphony

The winds and strings sections work together in perfecting "Music of the Fireworks."

Accepting the applause for the orchestra, Mr. Dowling takes a bow at the Prologue Concert.

Good form is evident in Mr. Dowling's direction of this after school rehearsal.

The brass section knows their responsibility by going over their part in a rehearsal for Mid-State Nine.

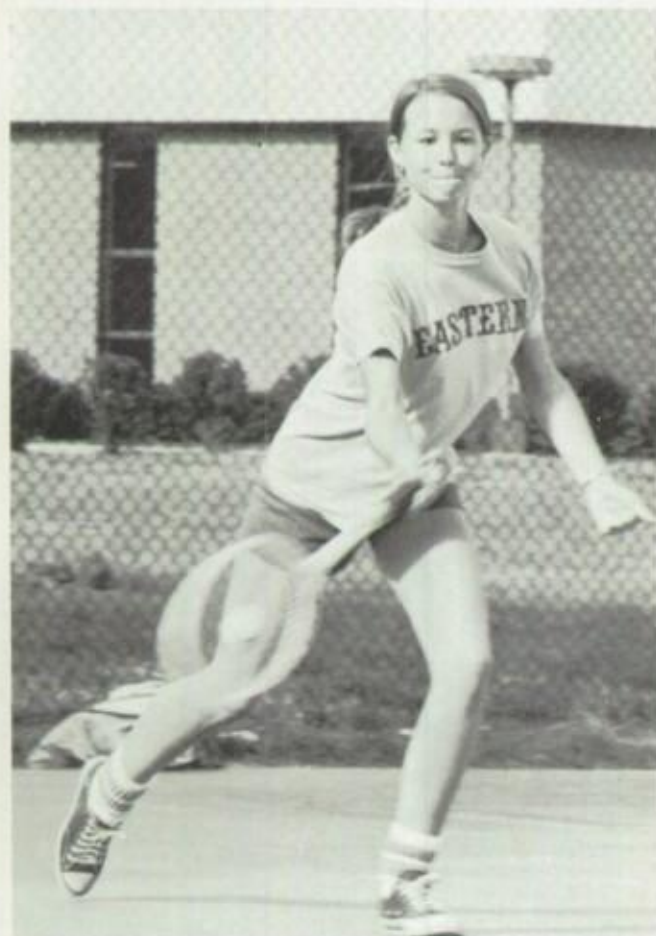

After tryouts for entrance into Concert Orchestra were held, these musically endowed students started working for their first concert. This Winter Concert with the Band was followed closely by the annual Christmas Concert. Early in '76, the Orchestra took part in the Mid-State Nine Festival, held at Limestone. Later in the spring the Orchestra gave a Lenten Concert together with the Master Choir at Westminster Presbyterian Church in Peoria. The last performance of the year was their Spring Senior Recognition Concert on the seventh of May.

It's One Tough Cookie

By the end of the football season, coaches had developed young talent like Brad Douglas into players who will continue making touchdowns for next year's season.

During the ever-popular volleyball games, team members like Kathy Glynn were always pulling together until the final game point was made.

Dominating the courts with racket in hand, senior Chris Shirk practiced constantly on developing form and forehand smash.

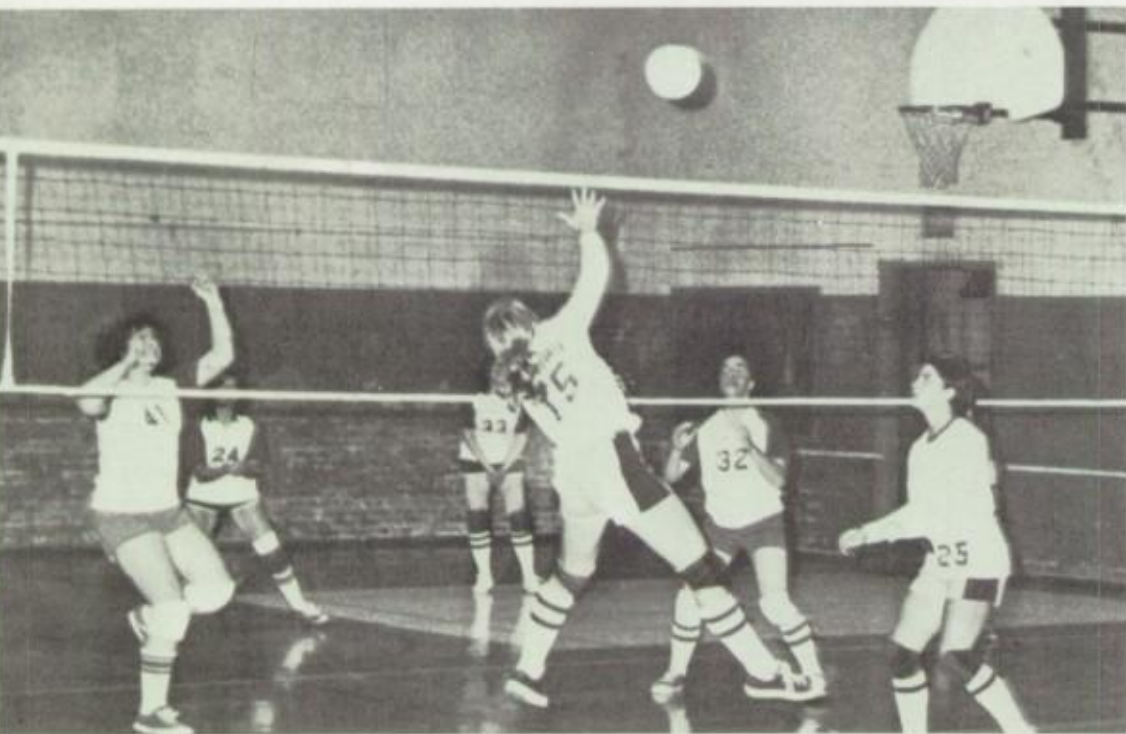

In most games such as basketball when quick decisions require a little extra effort, the girls showed that they were really on the ball when fast action was needed.

At the net, the girls volleyball team showed all their expertise and strength backed by long hours of hard practice and cunning strategy.

In the everchanging area of sports, progression and time are important factors. Just the idea of competition causes an individual or even a whole team to keep trying to improve themselves. Athletes begin with hard and long workouts in anticipation of battling against a worthy opponent.

A new sign of the times is the increasing popularity in women's sports. Girls have formed various athletic teams like baseball, basketball, track, and volleyball. As long as the spirit of competition is evident, the field of sports will constantly undergo changes.

Just as involved as his own wrestlers in every match, Coach Brethorst lends his matmen as much support as possible to encourage a winning score.

Young athletes like Scott Marvin and Steve Harrison are on the move to reach that finish line.

FASTEST OF THE FLEET

Dedication! The Harriers put in long and hard hours, but it payed off in the long run.

The gearheads of East Peoria proved to be the fastest of the fleet. The Harriers raced to many victories this season under the leadership of second year Coach Ed McGraw.

Experienced Seniors John Emser, Phil Hight, Rick Morrow, and Don Schleigh paced the Raiders to a winning season at 7-4. Hight finished his career at E.P.C.H.S. by going all the way to sectional after finishing 9th at district.

An added dimension for the Harriers was experienced underclassmen running in varsity meets. The future looks bright for the Harriers with this young talent to return.

SLOW START

By getting the ball to John Burroughs E.P. can be certain to gain extra yardage. Burroughs out ran this Limestone defender for a touchdown. Burroughs gained 166 yards at this game and totaled 711 yards this year.

In a key play of the homecoming duel, Al Nimmo intercepts a pass ending Pekin drive. The Raider backfield is the best in the MS9 in interceptions.

The seniors on this year's winning team will surely be missed. Greg Winder was a pleasant surprise to the Raider offense, he could take Coach Margetis' advice and turn it into points for the Raiders.

The "stone-wall defense" of the Raiders seems small to the job it does. Quick and agile are words which describes them best.

FAST FINISH

The East Peoria Varsity football team ended the season 6-3, giving the team it's fourth winning season in six years. The grid-ers were keyed by the speed of all the team members and the leadership of Bill Solomon. As the Limestone coach put it "that boy Solomon could do anything . . ." Adding to the attack were the running backs Greg Winder, A. Nimmo, and John Burroughs who is second in the MS9 in rushing. An air attack was formed through Mike Walston, Terry Johnson, and Steve Meyers. The onewall defense held Pekin at the 1 yard line, and the bruising tackles of Bill Smith stopped any team's hopes of a victory. East Peoria rose above the predictions to finish third in the MS9.

The un-sung heroes of the E.P. football team, the offensive line, does all the Dirty Work for the backfield by opening holes and making key blocks.

Bill Solomon evades two Pekin Chinks to gain extra yardage during the Homecoming clash. Solomon is no. one in the Midstate Nine in passing and listed by "Popular Sports" as one of the top 100 high school linebackers in the nation. Solomon also started at safety and did all punting and placekicking.

Golf takes determination and our Raiders have that quality. Thoughts of goofing-off can materialize easily when you are on the golf course, but the boys are determined to improve their game.

The young inexperienced team is made-up mostly of seniors and sophomores. John Murphy, a promising young sophomore will be a big asset to the team all of the coming years. Sophomores John Duchien, Gary Vroman, and Jay Clatt will add to the team next year.

This year's seven seniors pulled the team through the hard season. After graduation the sport won't be dropped by these boys. It will be a sport which they can enjoy the rest of their life.

E.P. had the misfortune of playing the number one team in the state, Richwoods, early in the season. The MS 9 conference is dominated by top-seated teams which provide stiff competition for the Raiders.

New Coach Helps E.P. to Rebuild

The 75-76 season proved not only to be one of rebuilding but a success. Lead by two seniors, Mike Tousley and Scott Schieber, the young team was a worthy opponent in the MS 9 as shown by beating Woodruff 88-82.

Seniors lead the EP wrestling team to a great year. Dave Miller the 185 pound mass of muscle qualified for state competition and provided a good show there. Miller is known for the fastest pins in the MS 9. Miller placed first in the MS 9 tourney, the District and the Sectional tournaments. The team ended the year with a 13-5-1 record.

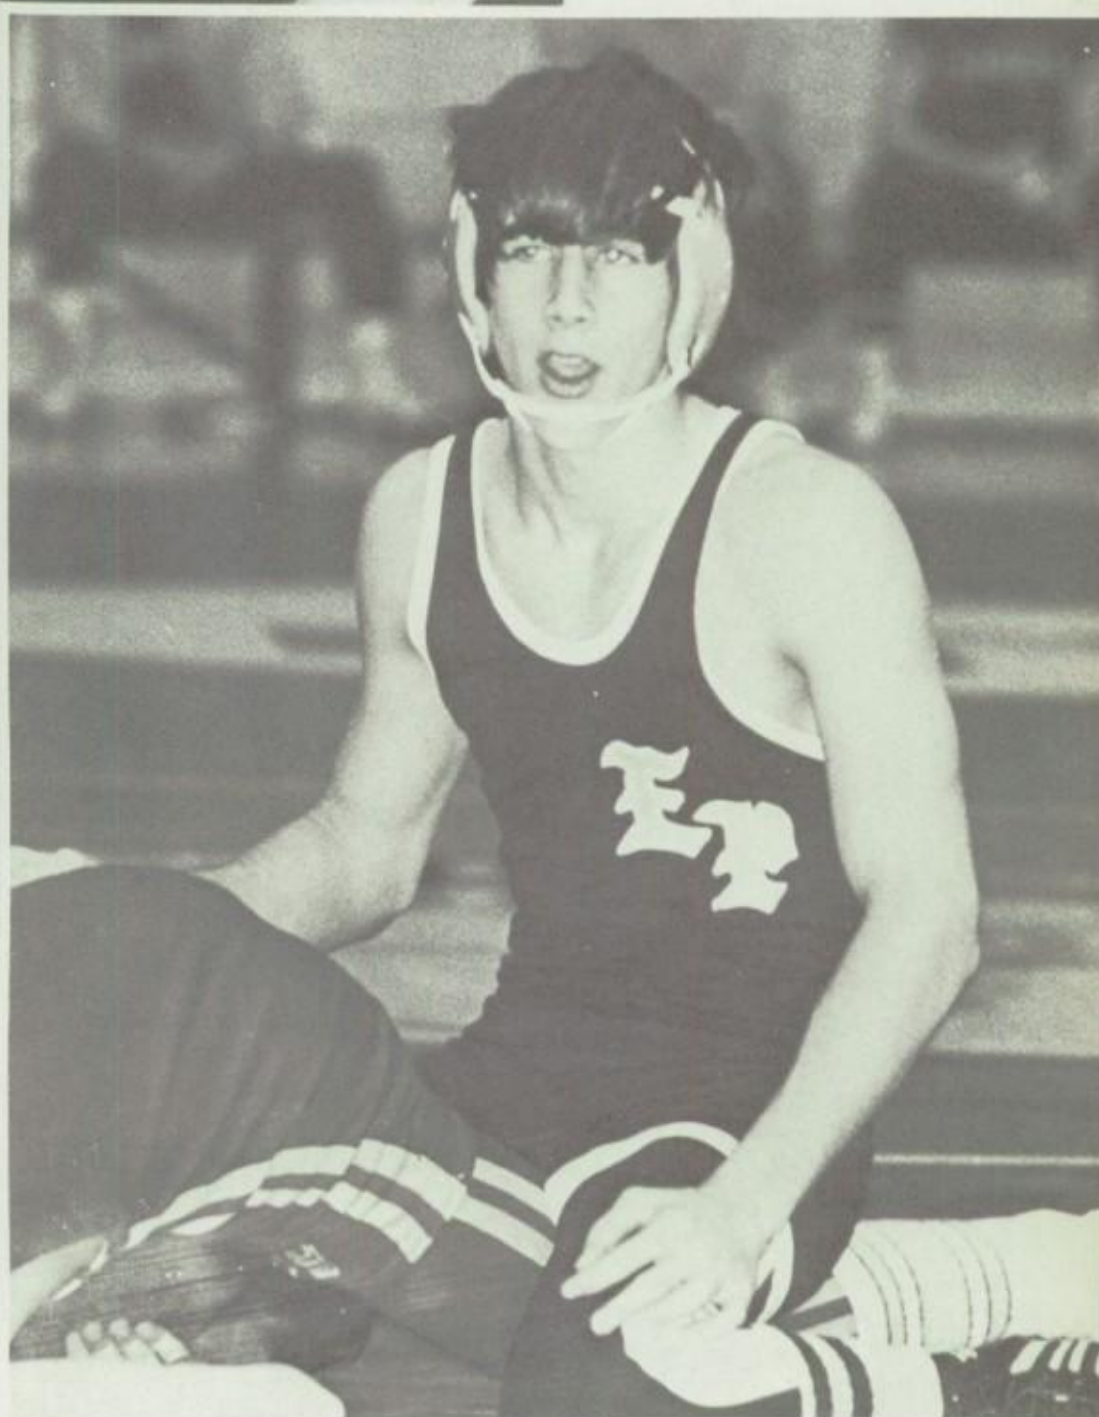

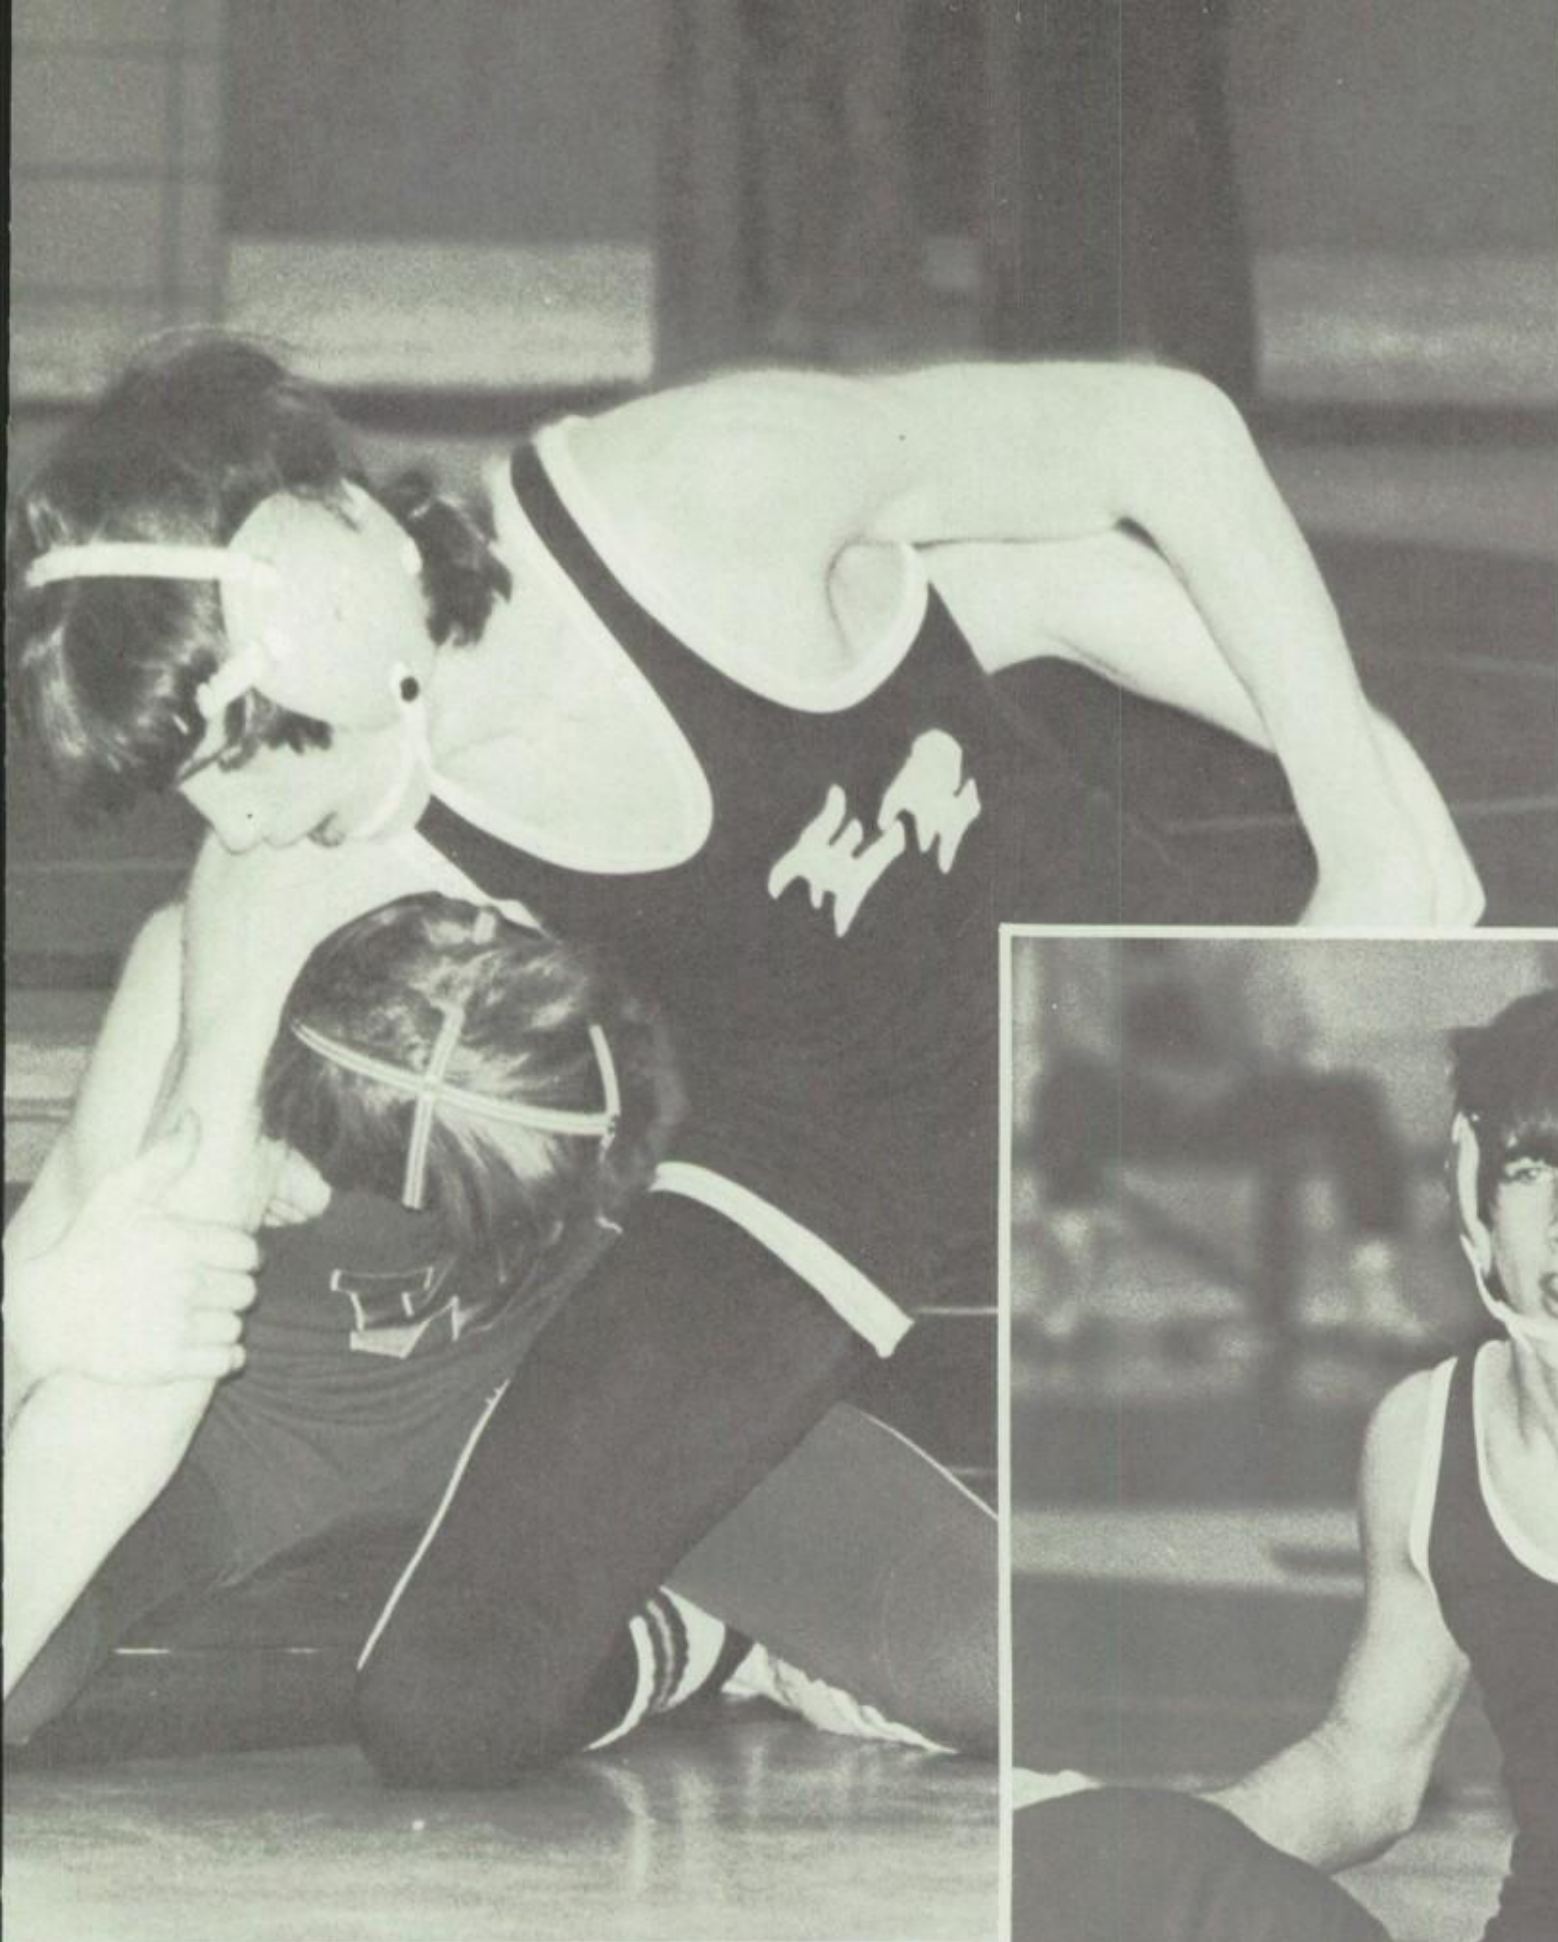

An E.P. grappler at 145 pounds is Dave Nimmo. His first tournament championship came against Spalding in the MS 9 Tourney defeating Joe Ciabatonni 6-2. Dave ended his season with a third place finish in the District Tournament.

Seniors Lead EP Wrestling

Senior Bob Zaborac wrestled for the Raiders at 105 pounds. A list of his accomplishments for this year include; qualifying for Sectional, placing second at District and in the MS 9 conference.

After defeating his opponent, senior Bill Brummitt looks to Coach Brethorst for approval. Bill was one of the seniors who made the EP team great.

The East Peoria varsity track team ended the successful '76 season 5-3. Breaking records became a pastime for many of the runners. The 440 relay team broke the school's record with a time of :44.7. Ron Dean, John Emser, Tom Dickerson, and Al Nimmo were the runners in that event. Scott Marvin broke the record for the 330 low hurdles, his time :41.1. Al Nimmo also broke another record in the 440 running the course in :52.3. The two mile relay team consisting of Don Schliegh, Fred Brown, Chris Strausbaugh, and Marty Geber broke the school record with a time of 8:27.5. Peoria Stadium in the night provides an unusual setting for getting unique pictures of the East Peoria track team. While being silhouetted by the lights, Scott Heppe clears the bar with inches to spare. Scott's best vault for this year was 10'9".

Striving for the finish line, Al Nimmo and Rick Morrow run in the 440. Al holds the school record for the 440, which he broke in the MS9 meet, of :52.3.

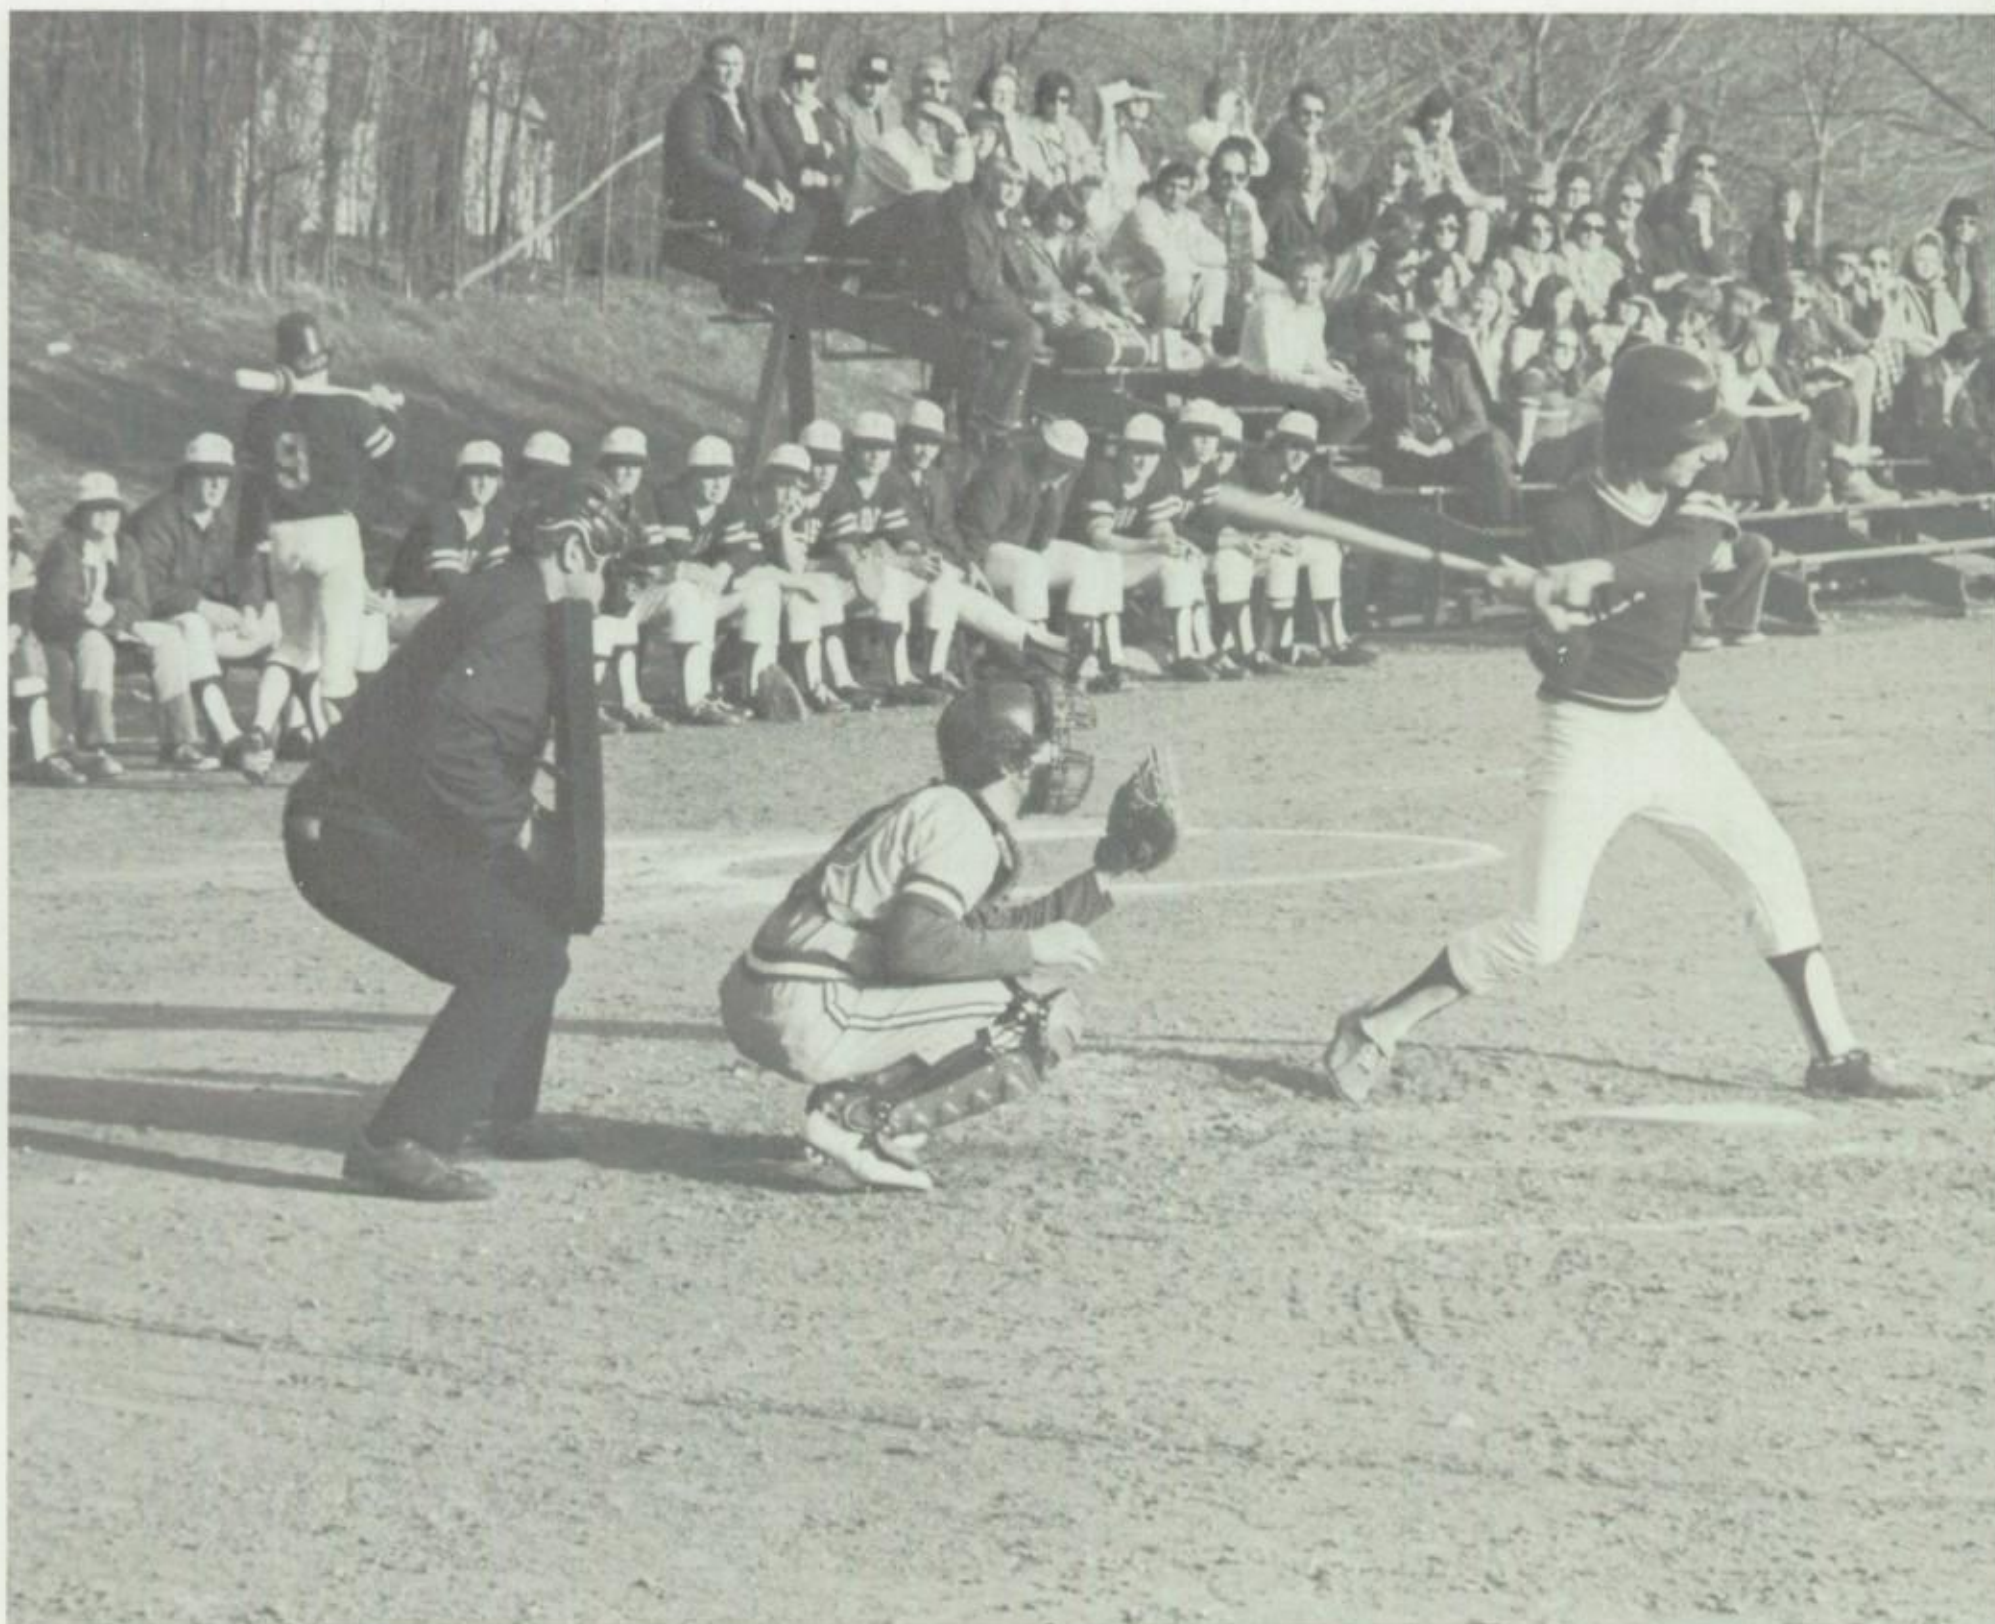

The long and triple jumps are dominated by other MS9 schools; however, Vic Laredo, Mark Waldon, Steve Meyers and Tom Dickerson, who was ranked sixth in the triple jump, are destined to provide stiff competition.

In the Clutch #1

In the clutch the Red Raiders were number 1. The Raiders came through in many instances to get that important game winning run in the late innings. Depth at every position may be the secret to a winning team; that would prove to be right at East Peoria. Pitching, a valuable asset to any team, was strong this year with returning lettermen Terry Jones, Dave Smith, Bill Solomon, and Jim White leading the Raiders. Some of their success may have come from new pitching Coach Fumagalli, a pitcher in college. A plus for the Raiders this year came from underclassmen able to come through at the right time. With only five seniors on this year's team, the Raiders can look for even a more experienced team next year.

Senior pitcher-infielder Bill Solomon stretches while following through on a dangerous curve that baffled many a hitter. Junior outfielder Mike Walston waits eagerly for the outcome of the pitch.

Senior Jim White warms up before a game. Jim was one of the pitchers on the strong Red Raider staff.

Raiders Make a Lot of Racket

The Raiders returned to the court this year with over half of the team being lettermen from last year's team. This means that the Raiders were well experienced this year. The top senior for the Raiders was Steve Applegate, playing first man constantly, followed respectively by No. 2 man Jon Sams and No. 3, Mark Wasson.

The varsity had another new look this season with new coach Koch. Coach Koch was the coach of the Junior Varsity last year. The Raiders looked superb many times, especially against Manual in which they won 9-0 and each player almost shut out their opponent.

There're No Faults With Our Team

Successfulness was achieved by the Junior Varsity this year. The young Raiders were guided by new head Coach Kraut, his first year at East Peoria. The Raiders were led by a large group of sophomores which by next year should be ready for the varsity level. Their hustle overcame the mistakes they made. With twelve members on the team, the first nine positions were constantly being fought over with challenge matches. The team can be proud of their season.

Experience, The Name of the Game

It's up for grabs as the Raiders start another game. John Murphy jumps as high as possible while his teammates await the outcome.

Another two about to go in for Ron Reinholdt while teammate John Murphy is ready for the rebound if needed. Ron also played for the varsity, gaining the much needed experience.

Experience is a quality found in most good basketball programs; East Peoria is no exception. Some sophomores dress or even play varsity after their own sophomore game. The freshmen have an A & B game in which everyone has a chance to play. The J.V. program has switched coaches bringing Coach Trotter up to the sophomore level and Coach Shank for the freshmen. An accomplishment for the sophomores was beating Richwoods, something they haven't done in the past. In another game they came close to beating league-leading Central.

Second Row: Jerry Smith, Robert Peterson, Ron Ballard,

With strategy being a key role in wrestling, a wrestler must be always thinking. When he has his move planned out, he must execute it with much quickness. If his move fails he must start the whole process over again. The Raiders proved successful by finishing way ahead. Coach Kahn was extremely proud of his freshmen for the lack of numbers he had on his squad. The sophomores finished very well, also losing some wrestlers to the varsity. Both coaches look forward to an even better year next year for these young men.

Who's who? Well the one on top is one of our own Raiders getting ready to take control of the situation.

Junior Varsity runner Alan Hogan gets added experience by running with the Varsity. Alan is running with Ron Dean (Varsity) in the 880 yard relay. Dean along with Rick Morgan, Tom Dickerson and John Emser ran the relay in 1:33.7 which earned them a place in the Mid-State Nine Honor Roll.

The two mile relay is a very demanding race. Steve Harrison keeps the pace going for East Peoria during a dual meet against the Limestone Rockets.

Tim Halbecker is one of the hard working distance runners who under the guidance of Coach Ed McGraw, added needed points to the overall scoring in the meets.

Track Team Off and Running

The Junior Varsity Track team ended the season 6 and 4. Hard work and practice paid-off for the young team. Some of the runners ran against the Varsity during meets, and gained valuable experience. Coaches Hartter, Beckman, McGraw, and Newton advised the team on new methods and styles to improve their performances. The J.V.'s are ready to take the place of the seniors on the Varsity and continue the East Peoria tradition of a good track team.

J.V. Looking Good

The Junior Varsity Red Raiders proved to be a formidable opponent in the MS-Nine. The sophomores had five players that played at the varsity level regularly. Both teams showed a lot of depth in the field and at bat. Coach Gottwald and Coach Trotter praise their teams highly.

Don Meyer proved to have the hot bat for the Raiders hitting several home runs for the varsity. Good weather helped the Raiders practice early which prepared them well ahead of that first game. The Raiders can look forward to a bright future when they reach the varsity level.

Girls Softball Pulls a Fast One

Having played together for two years in Lassie League or in the school league helped this year's team to a winning season. The season started early and the team won all their early games. A new addition to the roster was a State Tournament held at Pekin. Gayla Winter was the pitcher for the team and known for her speed and aggressive play on the mound. Cheryl Buss played short-stop and was an outstanding batter for the mighty Raiders. The team had both a tough infield and outfield and because they were such a well-rounded team they had a winning season.

BEST SEASON EVER FOR GIRLS' TENNIS

Dressed in her practice garb, Elaine Trumble waits for her partner, Lisa VanWinkle, to get set to serve. Trumble and VanWinkle played fourth doubles.

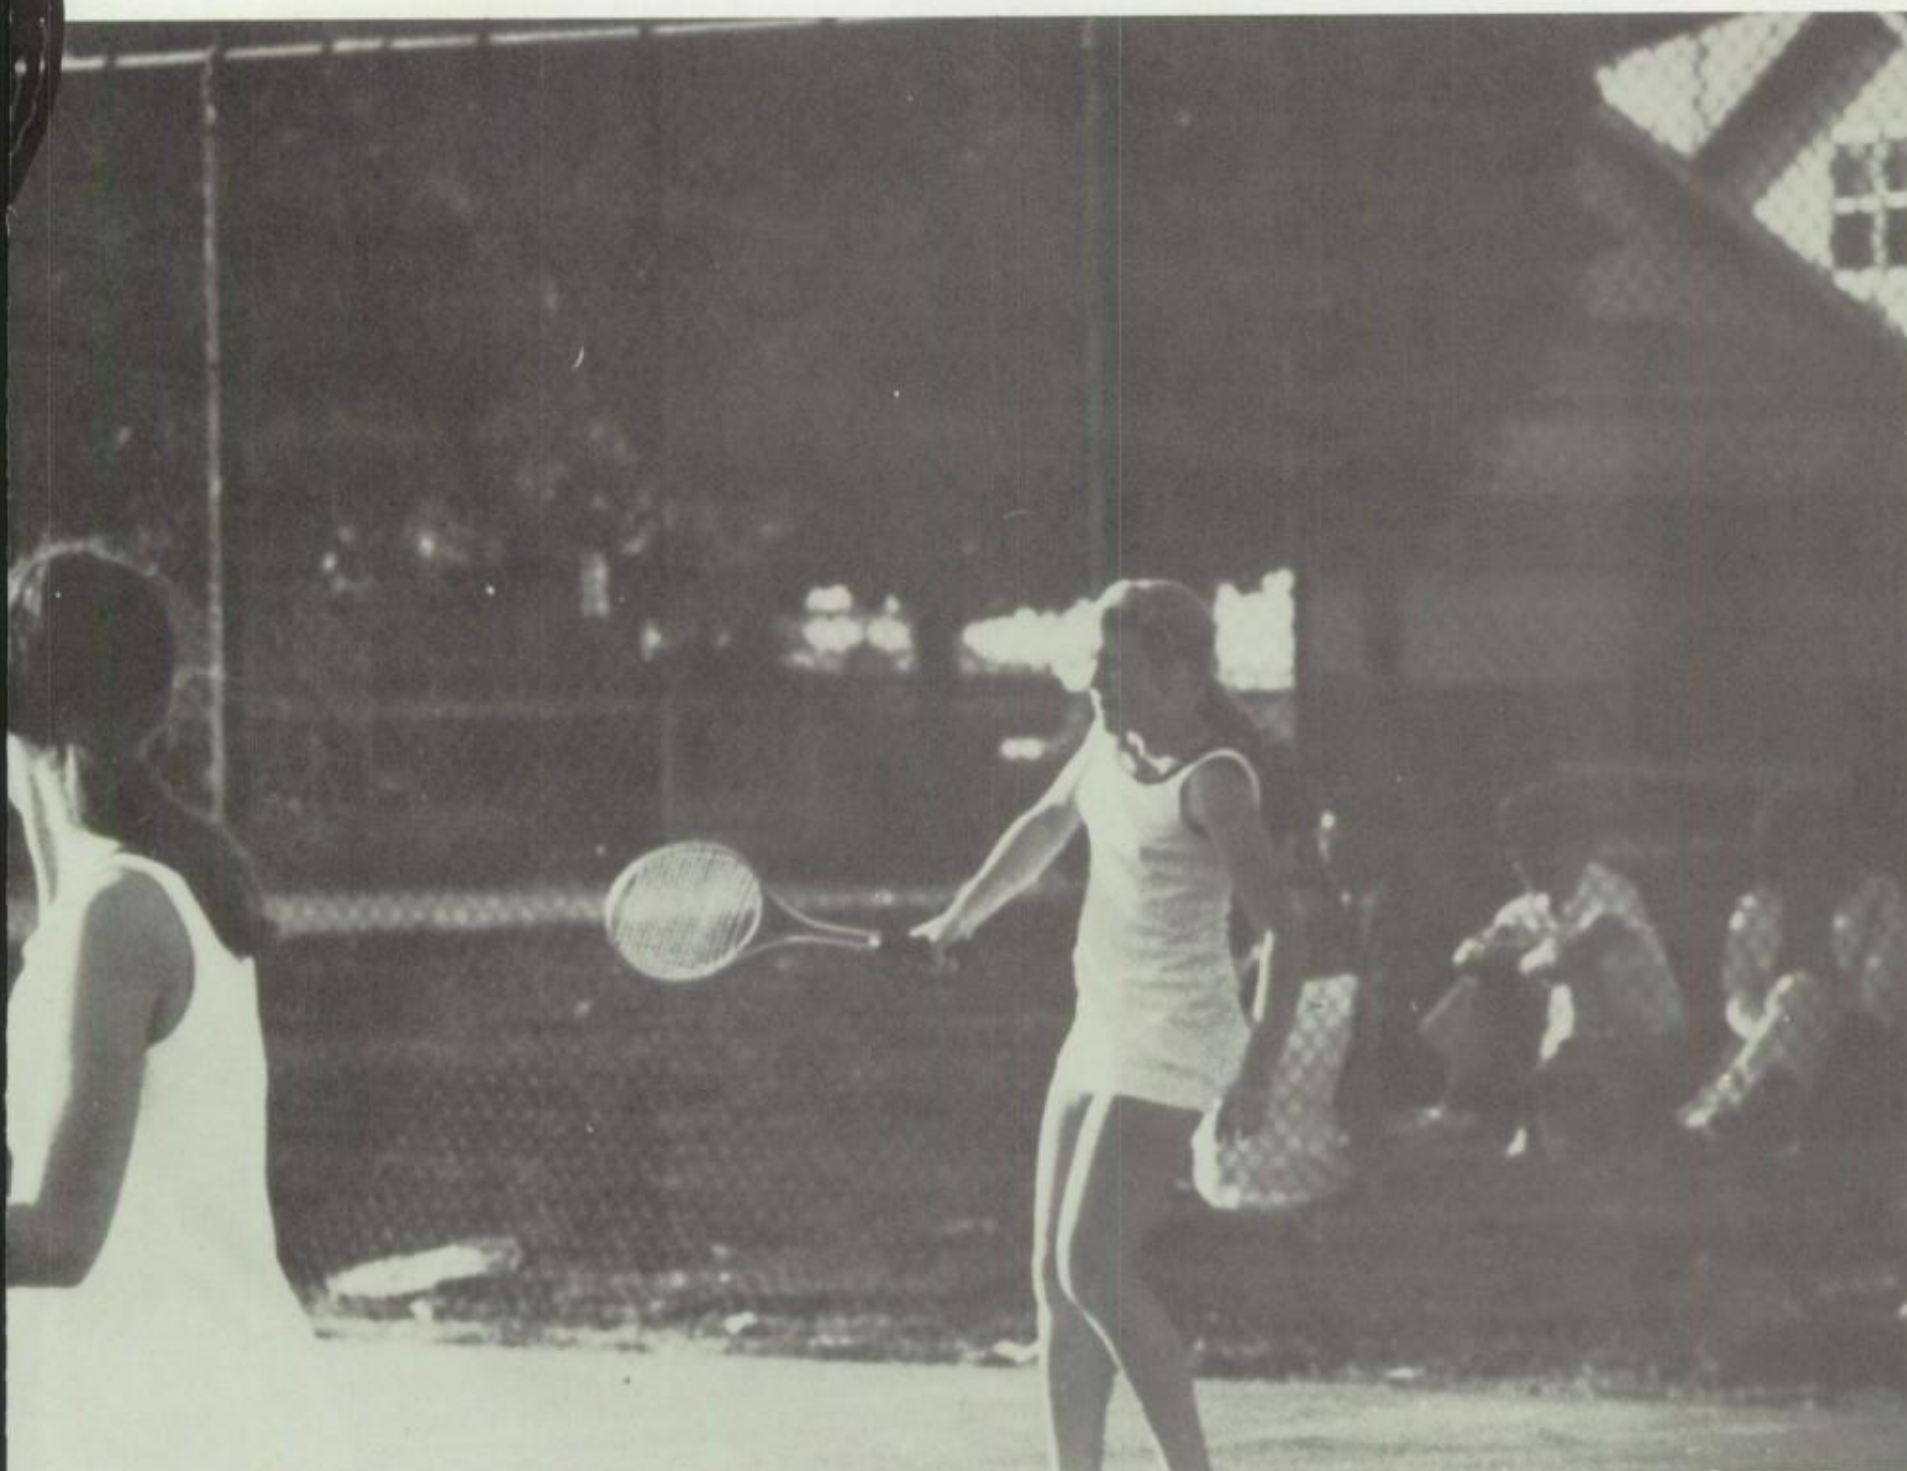

girls' tennis team had the best season ever, 4-6-1. Kathy [Name] and Chris Shirk were the singles players and played outstandingly well. Kristy Glynn and Jackie Davis played first doubles, Sally Blume and Vicki Walker; Jill Phillips and Lisa Theobald played second and third respectively. Tennis in the fall can be dependant on the weather. Many of the morning practises were cold and the girls were often seen playing in winter coats, hats and mittens. The District Tournament was held on one cold, windy Saturday. Shirk was seen warming-up in three coats! The Raiders did well in the District and had the best season ever.

Kristy Glynn shows her follow-through during a match against Pekin. Jackie Davis and Glynn played first doubles for the mighty Raiders.

Kathy Glynn and Chris Shirk battle against the top ranked Bergan. Both girls played singles and faced the top racket club players. They teamed-up for District and went to the state losing to Richwoods.

Gayla Winter takes a break in one of the time-outs of the Central game as Kristy Glynn listens to Coach Jones. Volleyball is a very demanding sport requiring much time and effort to get your form down good.

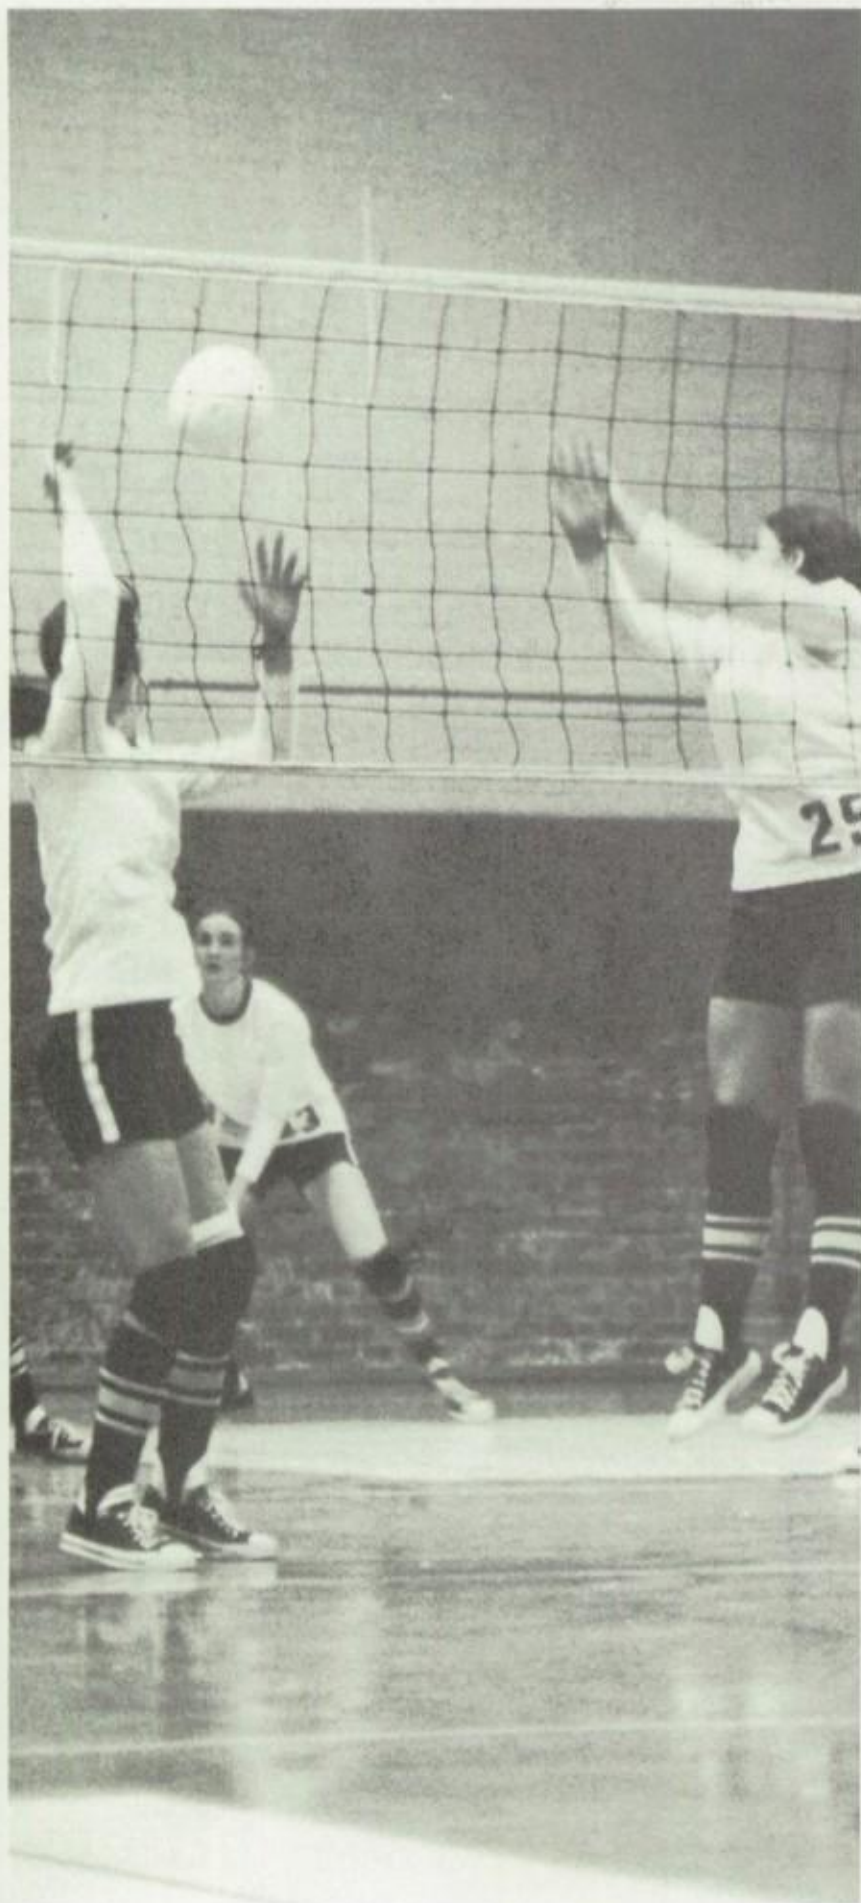

The approach and wind-up is the most important part of a good spike, Kathy Glynn shows this form. Kathy is a senior and known for the height of her jump and the power of the spikes.

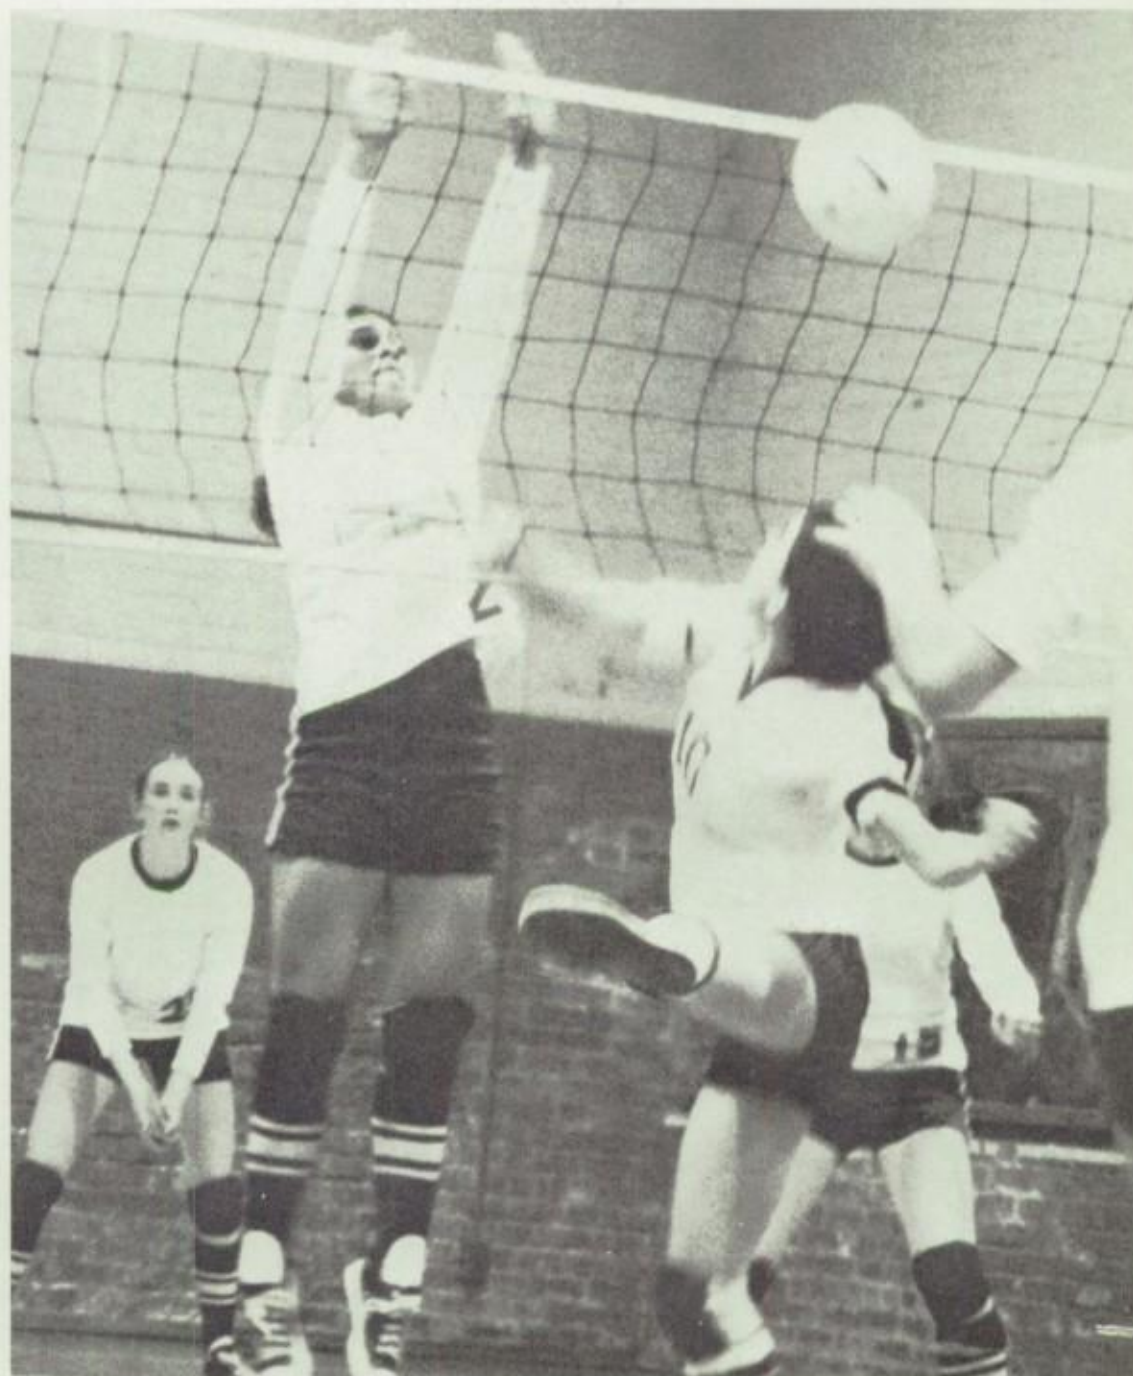

The follow through of the hit is when Kathy puts the spin or the direction on the ball. The before and after pictures of Kathy show how her good form made her spikes unbeatable.

The seniors on the powerful EP team display their enthusiasm after they beat another of their tough opponents. The seniors include Deb Tittle, setter; Gayla Winter, spiker; Chris Shirk, spiker; Kathy Glynn, spiker; and Jean Callow, spiker.

The pass is the hit which makes a good volleyball team. The EP team practices many hours on just this hit. Gayla Winter shows good form as she lines herself up for the hit as Jean Callow backs her up.

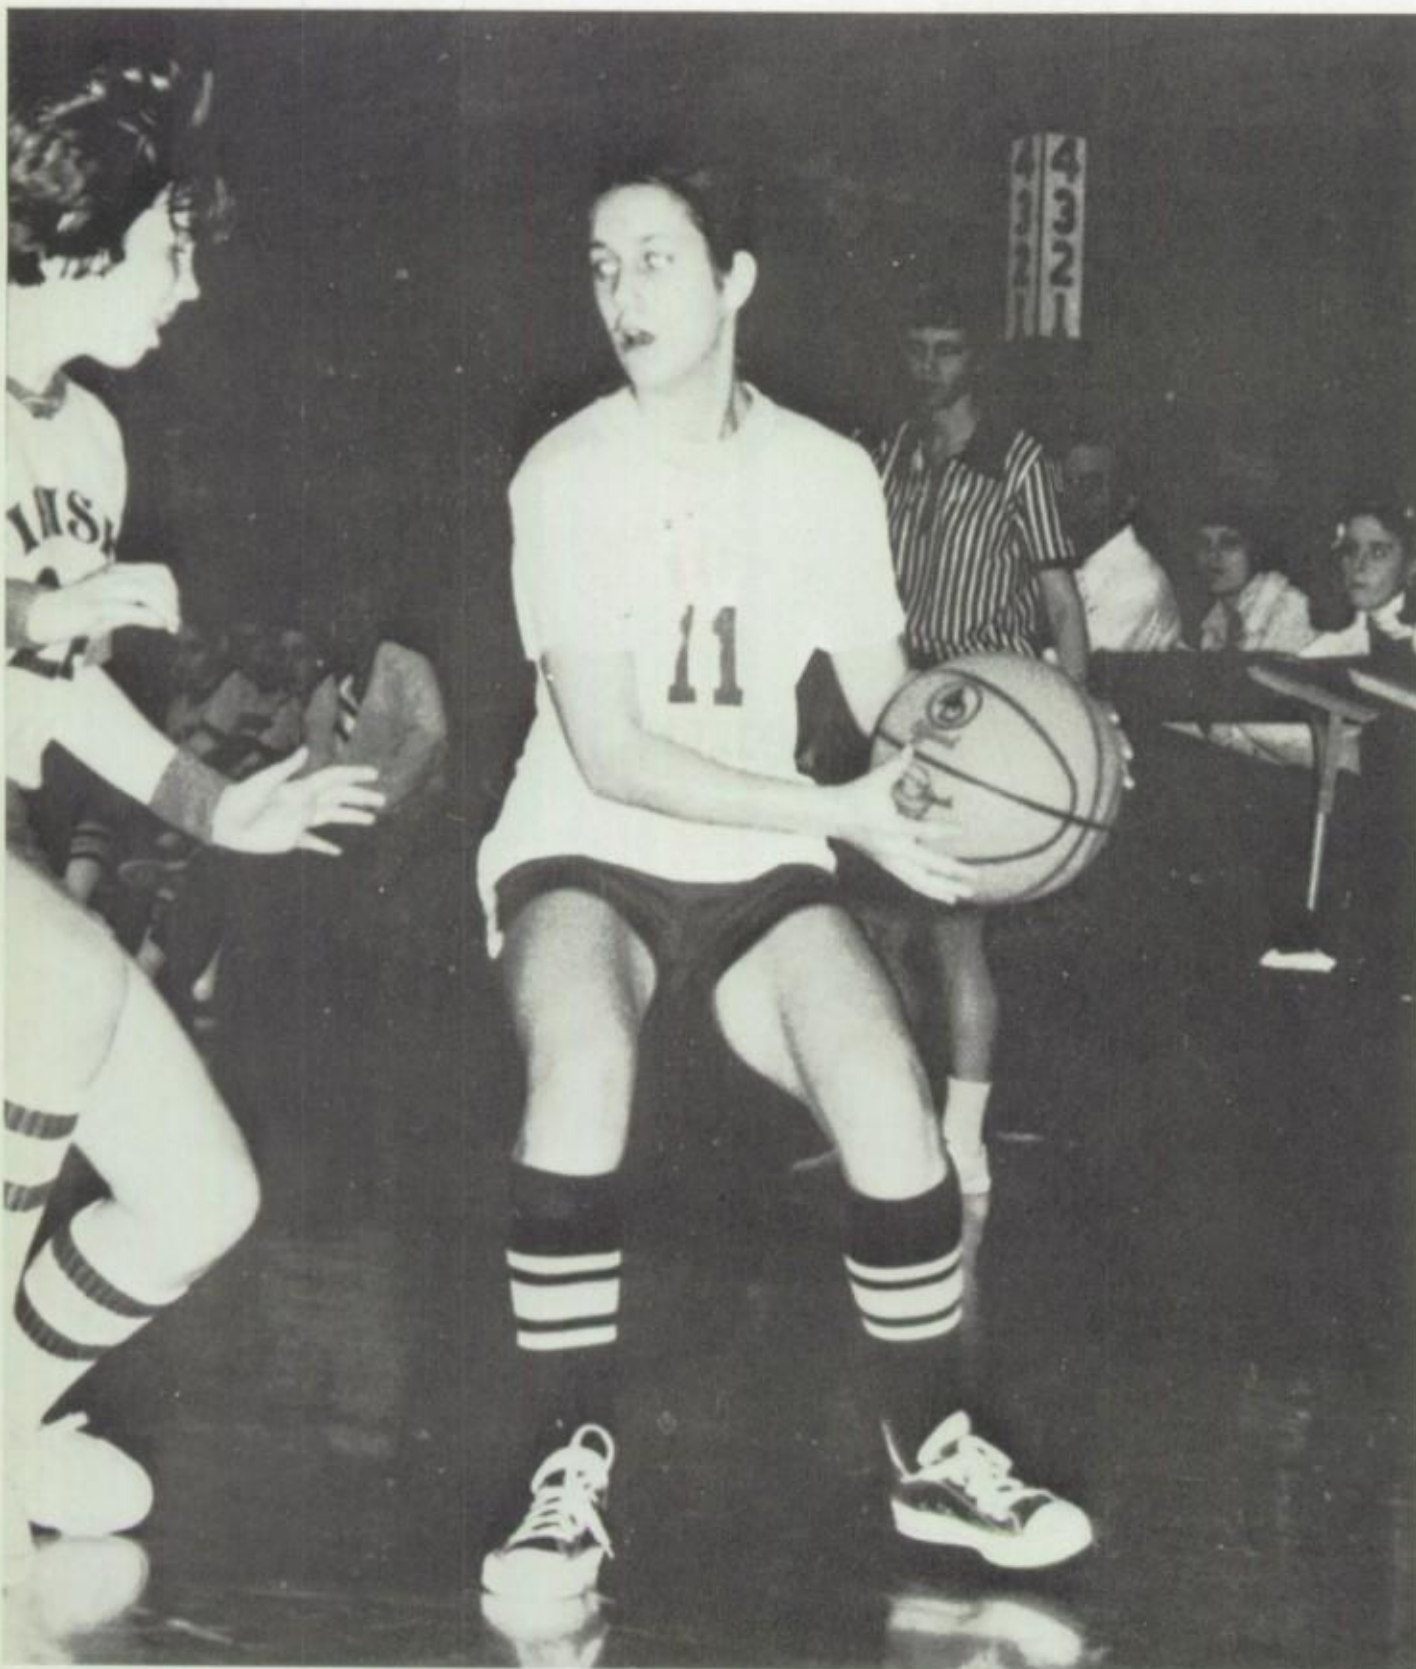

Donna Sutton puts up a block against the tough Central Lions and successfully catches their spiker out of position. Donna, a sophomore, played on the senior dominated varsity team.

The girl's volleyball team ended the season 16 and 1. The team went undefeated during the regular season but lost against Washington in the championship game of the sectional tournament. The seniors on the team displayed outstanding leadership and desire during the practices and the killer-instinct during the games. E.P. was taken to three games only four times and won all but one of those games.

The power spikers on the team were Kathy Glynn and Gayla Winter. Chris Shirk forever will be remembered for the "Shirk Special" a unique type of dink. Jean Callow was a spiker who was known by a down the line spike, one of the toughest types of spikes to do. Debbie Tittle was the setter in the group of seniors, the other setter, a sophomore is Donna Sutton, who started as a freshman.

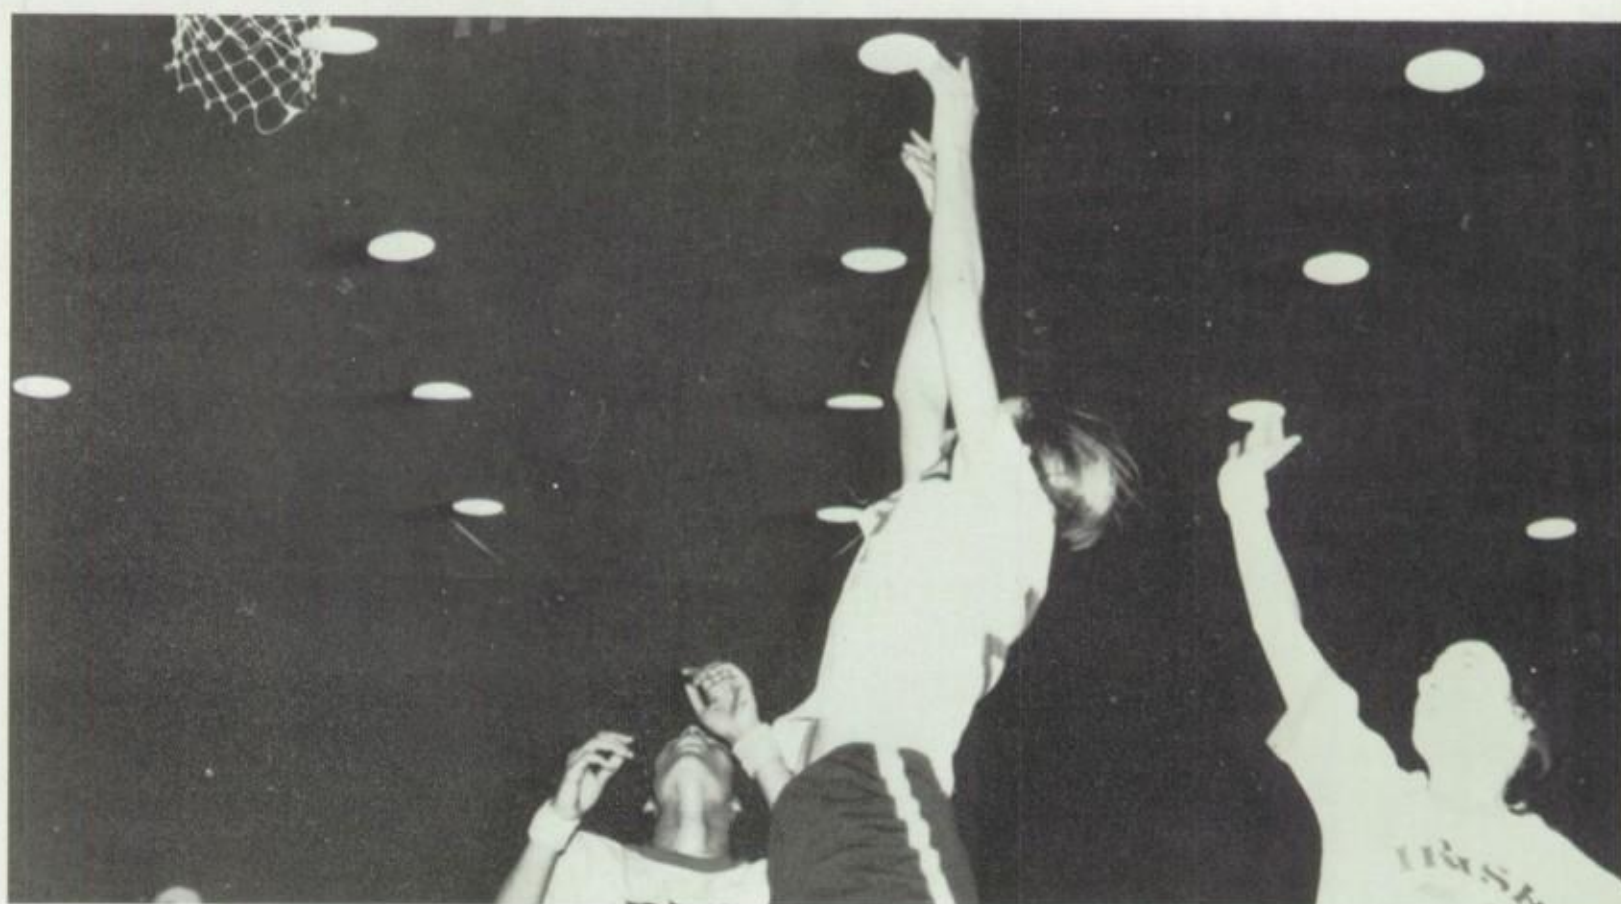

Carrie "Fish" Fisher shows her skills as a dribbler as she evades her opponent. Being a left-hander enabled her to get around many of the players who are used to guarding right-handed players.

Seniors Lead Winning

The Varsity girls' basketball team was led by eight outstanding seniors: Kathy Glynn, Jean Callow, Gayla Winter, Carrie Fisher, Debbie Tittle, Linda Therkildsen, Joan Mooberry and Chris Shirk. The team which has played together for two years earned fourth place in the conference and in the tournament also. Jeanette Ulick, a junior, was a great asset to the team. Usually she was one of the top scorers. The season started off a little slow because of "volleyball lag" which affected six of the players. The scheduling was such the volleyball wasn't over until basketball had started, making it difficult to convert to the new sport. But the season ended better; they were only beaten by the powerful Central, Richwoods and Limestone, in MS9 play.

The leading rebounder for EP was Jean Callow. She seems to rise high above her opponents to grab that rebound. After being knocked around as much as she was, she earned the reputation of having a "rubber body" and proved this many times during the game.

Kim Houston, a sophomore "wonder", shoots for two as the Irish try to block the shot. Kim was moved up from the J.V. squad to Varsity early in the year and contributed much to the successful season.

Raiders to a Season

Kathy Glynn led the mighty Raiders to a winning season and was high scorer for the team. Kathy's favorite play was the fast break which was obvious to the spectator as he watches her tear down the court.

The girl's badminton team displays a quality that all coaches desire, depth. Joyce Decker and Ellen Johnson, fourth doubles and Elaine Trumble and Sandy Melko, third doubles, show this quality by winning most of their matches and helping the team to an overall victory.

Badminton First in MS9

The EP badminton team won the conference title although badminton isn't an official MS9 sport. Ending the season with a 9-3 record the team was led by outstanding seniors. Winning in badminton has almost become a tradition at EP, by winning the title both last year and this year.

An aggressive first singles player, Clara Tannhauser, led the strong EP team to an 8-2 record and a 6-0 record for conference play. Clara, known for hard smashes, shows her form which made her EP's number one player.

Kim Whitehurst paces herself till she reaches the end of two miles. Running the two mile requires determination. This quality is shown in the energetic freshman runner.

The same flying shows how Carrie Brodt strives to get every inch of distance in the broad jump. Although this is the first year for track, the seniors provided the strength for the young team.

The look of determination and hair flying show the effort put out by seniors, Bunny Randall and Carol Runyon in running the hurdles. Running hurdles requires timing as well as speed.

First Year for Track

Girls' Track Record

The girl's track team did well against the formidable MS9 teams in their first year of competing in the sport. East Peoria was well in the shadow of the Peoria schools because many runners on their team run for the Peoria Pacettes. East Peoria held their own against these tough opponents. Seniors helped the team to many of its victories and helped the underclassmen on the team to improve their strides and form. The team looks forward to next year and a year of experience under their belts.

Perfect Season for JVs

The JV volleyball team ended the season 11-0. The lack of setters was their only handicap. This team will take the place of the varsity and hopefully remain undefeated.

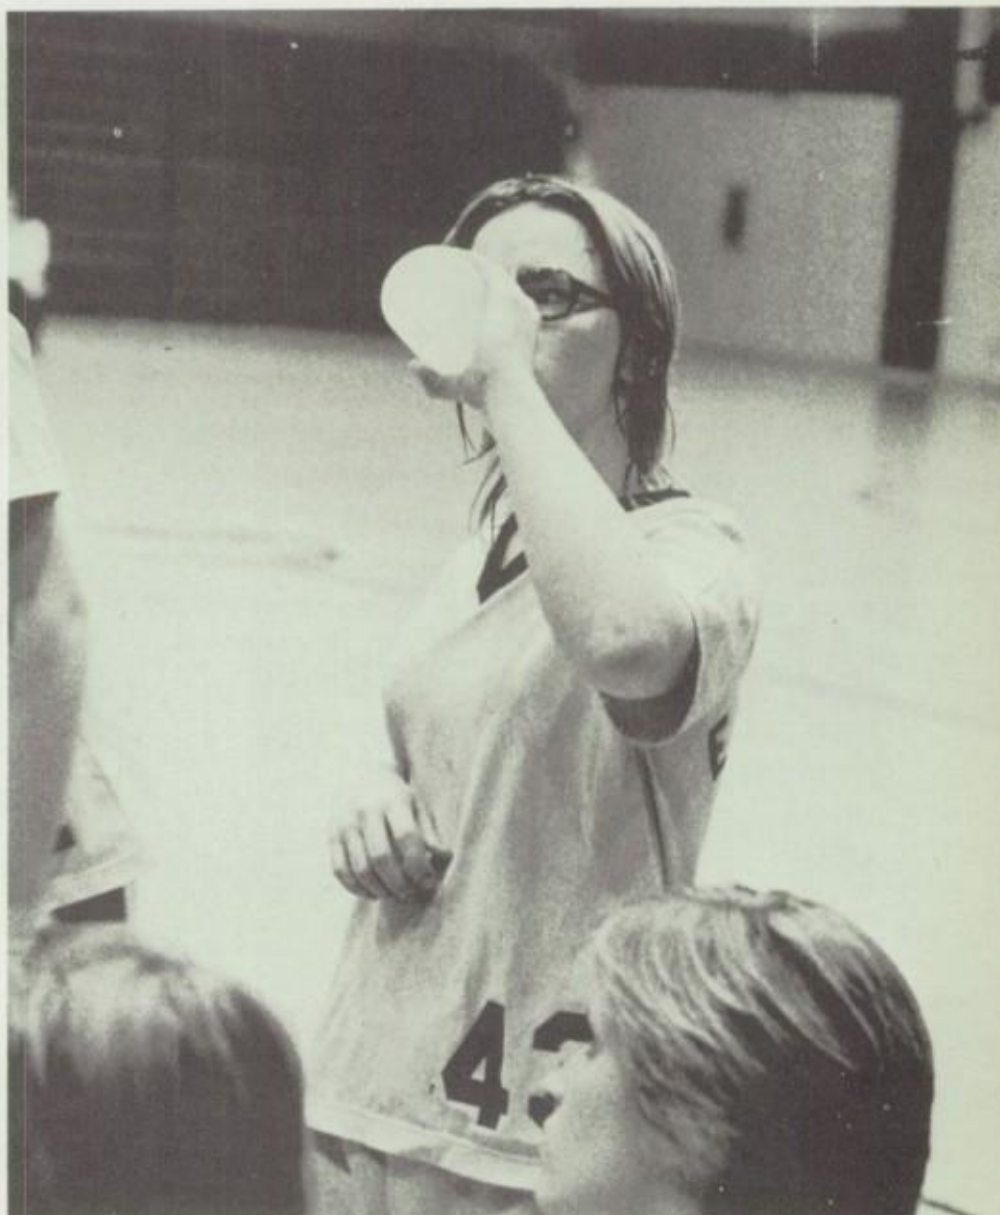

Debbie Bone, Renee Sommer and Lisa Herrmann watch as Kim Houston makes a save. The JVs were all freshmen and sophomores. Many got varsity experience during the tournaments, and all of the team is ready to take the places of this year's seniors.

Sylvia Quast shows her skill as a jumper as she out jumps this Central opponent. Sylvia, a freshman, became one of East Peoria's best players with her quick reactions and aggressive play.

Before resuming the exhausting contest, Trisa Murphy takes a break to listen to Coach Hendryx and refresh herself. Trisa was the high scorer for the mighty East Peoria team.

The entire bench feels the pressure of the close match against Limestone, but Coach Hendryx and his Raiders proved victorious in the end, winning 32 to 31.

The Suicides Payed-Off

After running endless hours of suicides (a form of wind sprint) the J.V. basketball team ended the season 9-4. The running really payed-off because their defense was the best in the MS9. Coached by Hendryx, the team learned the strategies which makes EP one of the best girls basketball schools in the MS9. Juniors Gail Dubas and Melynda French provide the rebounding power for the EP team. The scoring power was provided by Trisa Murphy and Sylvia Quast. JVs are really ready to take over.

Person to Person

It's the speak no evil, hear no evil, and see no evil in person! As you can see you can always count on John McCutchen, John Otey, and Rob Burton for something out of the ordinary.

Recognized as one of the world's fastest typewriter ribbon changers, Pat Murphy feels that it's just a matter of doing it your own way.

What looks like wall to wall people in this picture is only a small part of the 1800 people watching the girls perform on the trampoline, balance beam and unevens during the gymnastics assembly in October.

There's no mistake about it! These students prove they never have a bad time in school (especially when it's Friday!).

At one time or another we were all freshmen, looking towards the upcoming four years as if they would last for an eternity. Then as sophomores we were relieved of the fact that we were no longer freshmen. Thus, we began buckling down and grabbing the bull by the horns, preparing for the remainder of our high school career. By our junior year, we had shaken off the inhibitions caused by having been an underclassman. We were also more aware of the fact that in a year we would be wise-old seniors. Finally the senior has arrived, and once again after a short stay of four years, another class of seniors graduate from East Peoria.

Whether it's on the street or in the classroom, people learn that they don't have to practice being themselves especially when a camera is watching.

Getting a new outlook on things, John Jenkel explores the world through a different dimension.

From the first day a student enters high school as a freshman and until they graduate, they constantly undergo change with the progression of time. As proved by Terry Dodson, people are always changing and growing through their high school years.

FRESHMEN '79

Freshmen looked bewildered as they wandered through the maze of strange hallways on their first day at E.P.C.H.S. They soon adapted to high school life as assemblies were held to encourage them to participate in the school's many activities. These underclassmen began to show their real initiative in raising money for their class by selling Bicentennial candles.

In Memory Of . . .

Karen Johnson

Kathy Kramer

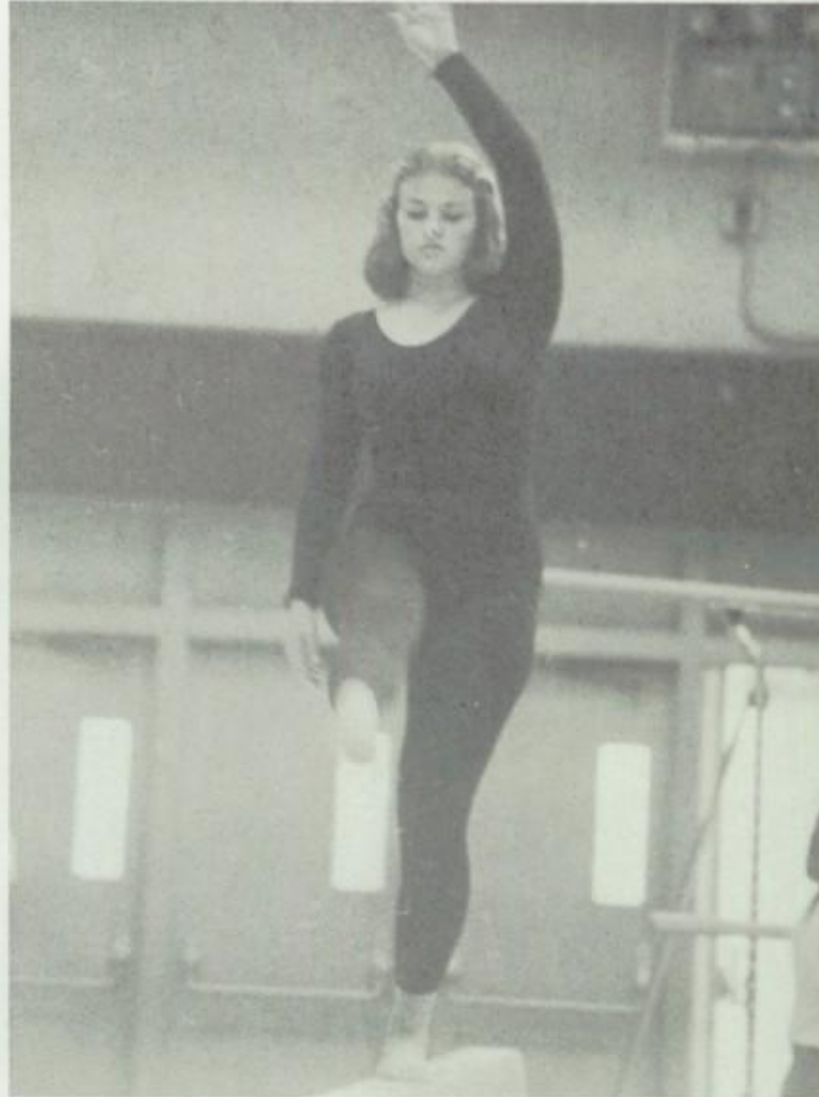

Baby-faced Dede, Pretty Boy Mike, Machine Gun Marilyn, and Cement Shoes Janet led the Junior Syndicate into a year of domination. Juniors held the office of president in Speech Club, EPOCH, Choir, French Club, Orchestra, Health Careers, Latin Club, and Photography Club. The class ripped off many homecoming awards: Volkswagen Push, Tug-of-war, Powder Puff Play-offs, Float and Participation awards. In the midst of their many activities these busy juniors found time to sell stationary made from recycled paper to show their support for "Johnny Horizon," the new ecological Bicentennial symbol.

Maureen Chase performs her routine on the balance beam during the Homecoming Gymnastics assembly.

John Otey proves there's no comparison to the different feats that juniors can perform.

Leading the way for the Junior class are officers: (bottom to top) Marilyn Calkin, Vice President; Janet Duchien, Secretary; DeDe Winkler, President; Mike Flinn, Treasurer.

During their last year of high school, seniors discover that numerous decisions must be made concerning their futures. Decisions regarding college, jobs, and careers require a lot of consideration to determine what each individual will choose to do after graduation.

The class of '76 added a touch of distinction to their graduation as the men wore blue gowns, the women wore the traditional white, and the bicentennial colors were brought out in their mortarboard tassels and medallion worn around the neck.

The hard work each senior has put into his education will begin paying off for him as he steps outside the high school realm of thinking and enters different phases of the "real" world, where he finds that his schedule is no longer programmed by a computer.

Even though remembrances of their high school years will bring back solemn "memories, sweetened through the ages just like wine," the new graduates will look forward to new and different opportunities and experiences.

The Final Link in the Chain of Events

Do you remember?

Whether your first day of school was sad or happy, as you look back on it, there is one thing about it that's true. The good times always seem to outnumber the bad times.

There is nothing we can do about time except to see that it passes productively. It stores the memory of what we used to be and what we can be as the months go by. Making the most of every day as if it were the last one is only the beginning of the purpose of living life just one minute at a time.

"Exists in every human nature, a goal . . ." In preparation for a cross-country meet, Phil Koth builds up endurance with practice on the football field.

Parting Shots

"Mid all the traffic of the ways, make in my heart a quiet place, where I may find myself." In the after-school scramble, students make their way to their lockers through the crowded ambulatory.

"Only to have made an effort is worth the struggle." Receiving recognition for her participation and scholastic achievement, Linda Johnson races to the stage upon becoming a member of the National Honor Society. Forty-six graduates from the class of '76 were added to the National Honor Society.

"What power can restore the moment that has passed or the day whose sun has set?" As part of his daily routine, a custodian lowers the flag after school, nearing the end of another day.

"We can do it if we will." Two Raiderettes prove that if you're really determined to get where you're going, nothing can stop you.

Take Time To Read: it is the source of wisdom.
Take Time To Think: it is a source of power.
Take Time To Be Friendly: it is the way to happiness.
Take Time To Laugh: it is the music of the soul.
